Fulbright, Stennis Clash War Policy Confronted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate supporters of President Nixon on Friday girded themselves for a battle over a means of heading off restrictions on U.S. actions in Cambodia, and Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield accused them of stalling a vote.

On the Senate floor, Chairman J. W. Fulbright of the Foreign Relations Committee and John C. Stennis of the Armed Services Committee clashed over whether President Nixon really means to have all U.S. forces out of Cambodia by July 1.

"I don't see how any president can call to a day certain, a day when a battle will be over, can assure there won't be reverses," said Stennis, arguing against the Cooper-Church amendment to bar funds for retaining U.S. forces in Cambodia.

"He's already done that," retorted Fulbright, Arkansas Democrat and a leading Senate foe of the Cambodian action.

"He made an estimate," asserted Stennis. "Adversity can develop."

"You confirm what I thought," Fulbright responded. "He didn't mean it when he said we would be out by July 1; it could be Dec. 1."

Stennis snapped: "You're putting words in my mouth which are false. I repudiate them." And the Mississippiian repeated that conditions might arise that could force the President to change his deadline.

Mansfield, talking with reporters before the Senate met, also took the view that proponents of the amendment designed it in accord with Nixon's promise to get U.S. forces out by June 30.

"It supports what the President has said and it gives him an added increment of strength," the Democratic leader said.

He added that "there seems to be no desire to face up to a vote" but "We'll just stay with it until we get a vote. We have got from now until Jan. 3, 1971." Asked if opponents have been stalling, the Montana Democrat replied, "It's a small stall."

But Republican Leader Hugh Scott said after an afternoon GOP leadership session there is no effort to delay a vote although he conceded some senators have said they need more time.

Scott said he does not want a vote at least until Tuesday—but promptly scheduled another session for that day to discuss possible alternatives to the Cooper-Church proposal.

But he conceded he sees little chance of agreement on one alternative proposal to give Nixon authority to order U.S. troops into Cambodia for the purpose of protecting American forces in Vietnam.

He said seven or eight GOP senators may offer as many as

Cong Begin New Drives

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces launched new drives in Cambodia Friday west of the invaded sanctuary area, with their main target the militarily outclassed troops of the new government in Phnom Penh. The tempo of the war was stepped up also in Laos.

In the sanctuary area the 14,000 U.S. and 20,000 South Vietnamese troops continued their search for enemy supply and materiel depots. They have met small resistance in recent days and intelligence experts believe the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese left rearward elements to fight a series of delaying actions while major forces and headquarters units withdrew to Cambodia's interior.

Supply trails and depots in eastern Laos loaded with war materiel came under attack by U.S. B-52s, informed sources said. The depots were jammed because the allied drive into eastern Cambodia on a dozen fronts barred their delivery to the once untouched sanctuaries.

An Associated Press correspondent with South Vietnam's Task Force 318 in Cambodia reported that Cambodian army defenders of Kompong Cham, 45 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, had asked for South Vietnamese aid in fending off a threatened North Vietnam attack.

Lt. Gen. Do Cao Tri offered air support but said he would not send in ground forces to help the Cambodians.

The North Vietnam forces were reported to be crossing the Mekong River just below the town in an apparent effort to outflank defending infantry and artillery units.

Brig. Gen. Phan Moeung, commander of Cambodia's 1st military Region, said Toul Bet, across the river from Kompong Cham, was already under North Vietnamese control.

He reported two Cambodian battalions "missing" and three companies still fighting north of Toul Bet, but expressed gloom over their chances to hold out for any length of time.

He estimated the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese had one battalion of their combined forces and 6,000 local Vietnamese irregulars with them, most of them based in a nearby rubber plantation.

The general said he expected the enemy forces to cut the road to Kompong Cham.

The Cambodians had their backs to the river with mortar positions below the edge of the river bank. Viet Cong forces attacked in a driving rain and crumbled part of the defense line.

The South Vietnamese troops operate outside restrictions placed on U.S. forces not to go beyond 21.7 miles into Cambodia. Thus far the South Vietnamese have gone by boat 45 miles to Phnom Penh on relief operations to evacuate Vietnamese. Ground forces have penetrated 35 miles into Cambodia, at Kampong Cham.

South Vietnamese marines clashed with a North Vietnamese battalion near the ferry crossing town of Neak Luong southeast of Phnom Penh and killed 39 enemy soldiers. Prisoners taken in the fighting said the battalion had orders to overrun Prey Veng, 15 miles to the north.

Intelligence reports estimated that three North Vietnamese and Viet Cong battalions were west of the Mekong River about 30 miles south of Phnom Penh, and elements of other large units were about 25 miles to the east and southeast.

In the northeast the Viet Cong launched a drive to take Stung Treng, near the Laotian border. The starting point was the provincial capital of Kratie, already in Viet Cong hands.

In southwest Cambodia government troops were forced out of an area north of the Gulf of Siam port of Kep near the border with South Vietnam. There were clashes Wednesday night between Cambodian troops and Viet Cong forces near Freedom Highway, which links Phnom Penh with the key port city of Kompong Som, formerly Sihanoukville.

The reports pointed toward resumption of an offensive interrupted by the allied drives into the eastern sanctuaries.

Despite the loss of thousands of weapons and millions of pounds of rice and ammunition in the sanctuary area, the enemy forces seemed able to maintain a defensive posture.

Two Youths Slain At Jackson State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two Negro youths, one a college student, the other a high school senior, were shot and killed Friday at Jackson State college by police who fired into a crowd in front of a campus dormitory. Police said there was "some evidence of sniper fire."

Most other college and university campuses were quiet, as students turned to informational and educational drives to press their antiwar action.

The fatal shootings of two young men at Jackson State followed a second straight night of disturbances at the predominantly black school in Jackson, Miss. There were conflicting reports about the cause of the trouble. Some students have claimed too many Negroes are sent to Vietnam immediately after graduation.

The president of the University of Miami, Dr. Henry King Stanford ordered that all university flags be lowered to half staff through Sunday because of the Jackson incident.

About 250 Millsaps College students led by Fayette, Miss., Mayor Charles Evers marched from Millsaps to the governor's mansion in Jackson to protest the shootings.

A presidential spokesman at Key Biscayne, Fla., said Friday morning a preliminary Justice Department report on the Kent State shootings has reached the White House. He said he expected President Nixon to make a statement on it in about eight days.

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell sent government investigators to Jackson, Miss., to probe the shootings.

The 25-second barrage of police gunfire into the crowd of young men in front of the women's dormitory also wounded nine Negro men.

Classes were suspended for the remainder of the semester in the aftermath of the shootings.

Blast Hurts 3 Students

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — Three Southern Illinois University students, one a Black Panther, were injured Friday in an explosion of what police said was either black powder or dynamite in a four-room house in a predominantly black neighborhood.

C. William Norman, Carbondale city manager, said police found blasting caps, three shotguns, a pistol and a timing device in the house.

All three of the injured students are Negroes.

One, Reginald M. Brown Jr., 21, of New York City, identified as a Black Panther party member, was reported in critical condition in Doctors' Memorial Hospital after the amputation of one foot.

Robert Canser, 20, of Chicago, was treated and released at the hospital, while the third victim, Paulette Webb, 19, also of Chicago, was listed in satisfactory condition at the university health service.

Police said the blast occurred inside the frame building and "definitely" was not caused by gas.

Investigators said a construction firm in the Carbondale area recently reported theft of dynamite from a building site.

Norman said a quantity of Black Panther party literature was found in the house.

State Atty. Richard Richmond filed charges of unlawful use of weapons and possession of a bomb against all three. Canser was the only victim able to go to court. His bond was set at $15,000.

Police said the owner of the house, Mrs. Mayme Thornton, told them the students had been renting it for several months. She said they changed the locks on the house and refused to give her a key.

Chaka Walls, Illinois Panther deputy minister of information, said in Chicago that Brown is a member of the party but that he (Walls) does not know Canser or Miss Webb.

Affects Carbondale Campus Trustees' Vote Closes SIU

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Trustees of Southern Illinois University voted Friday to close the Carbondale campus for the rest of the spring term.

The 4-1 vote, taken at a regular board meeting in Edwardsville, came in the wake of more than a week of campus disruptions and rioting.

In Carbondale, the community's tense calm was punctuated by an explosion in an off-campus house that injured three students who occupied it, but the blast had no apparent connection with demonstrations against the war.

The trustees' action followed a campus referendum Thursday in which students overwhelmingly voted to cancel classes for the remaining three weeks of the term.

The board's resolution closing the campus expressed fear of danger to human life under present conditions at the school.

The board is "very greatly concerned with educational opportunities available to students at the Carbondale campus and is seriously concerned with the imminent danger to life and property at that location," the resolution stated.

The trustees also expressed disapproval of violence, wars and racism "not only on the campus but all across the nation and world."

It called for the removal of student agitators from the school and urged recalling police officers and National Guard troops from the Carbondale campus "at the earliest moment that security permits."

The one dissenting vote was cast by Eugene T. Simonds of Carbondale, who said he agreed with all the sentiments expressed in the resolution, but opposed closing the school.

Voting in favor were trustees Ivan A. Elliott Jr. of Carmi, Chairman Lindell W. Sturgis of Metropolis, Melvin C. Lockhard of Mattoon, and Harold R. Fischer of Granite City. Three trustees were absent.

Meanwhile, a peace-keeping force of 1,100 National Guardsmen remained on station in the armory at Carbondale and a 7:30 p.m. — 6 a.m. curfew and bans on sale of gasoline, liquor, guns and ammunition remained in effect.

Prior to their vote, the trustees met in closed session with Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, SIU President Delyte W. Morris Chancellor Robert MacVicar of the Carbondale campus and Chancellor John S. Rendleman of Edwardsville.

Students, who voted 8,224 to 3,675 in favor of the three weeks early termination of the spring quarter, were ordered to vacate on-campus living quarters by noon Saturday.

The referendum Thursday was ordered by Morris after midweek demonstrations both for and against the early closing he ordered Tuesday. About half SIU's 22,000 students participated, the rest having gone home.

Faculty and nonacademic staff members voted for resuming classes, 1,734 to 778.

Students, faculty and staff also voted on retention of Reserve Officers Training Corps and the Vietnam Studies Center. The vote on these questions, not tabulated immediately, were to be announced Saturday.

At Champaign-Urbana, 1,500 University of Illinois students staged a noisy "mill-in" at the administration building announcing an intention to "liberate" the university and support of yet undisclosed "black students' demands."

A spokesman for the crowd

said students want conventional classes discontinued and proposed to begin "liberation classes relevant to the university in terms of the times."

The mill-in was suggested, a witness said, by K. Edward Renner, a psychology professor, who was quoted as saying, "Let's not just talk, let's do something."

Meanwhile —

— In Edwardsville, the Madison County Board of Supervisors recommended prosecution of all participants in violent demonstrations, and Sheriff George Musso said 80 men had volunteered for a sheriff's reserve to be used in crowd control situations.

— In Springfield, the Illinois House approved 93-11 a bill ordering one-year expulsions for state university students convicted of interfering with the operation of a state institution. It now goes to the Senate. House-approved proposals also included a fine for college officials who fail to act in such cases; a 10-year prison sentence for putting an explosive device in a public place, and life term or death sentence if anyone is injured or killed by such a device.

— At Great Lakes, the U.S. Naval Base canceled its annual Armed Forces Day program, scheduled for Saturday, because antiwar protesters announced plans for a rally near the base.

Rear Adm. H. A. Renken said the cancellation was to avoid endangering 5,000 civilian visitors who normally would attend the program.

— In Chicago, Northwestern University's law school made class attendance optional to free some 200 of its 500 students and all but two of its 38 faculty members for "Action for Peace" activity. This included getting signatures petitioning Congress to withhold war funds after Dec. 31 and speeches teaching "how to work within the system" to stop the war.

— At Urbana, seven students announced "liberation classes" for parents and other adults to teach "what actually occurred during the campus strike." Instructors are two political science professors who were arrested during a May 6 campus riot — Philip Meranto and Michael Parenti — on charges of mob action, resisting arrest, interfering with operation of an institution and aggravated battery.

Egypt Loses Jets In Suez Fighting

TEL AVIV (AP) — Egyptian and Israeli jets tangled for the second straight day above the Suez Canal Friday, with Israeli pilots claiming three more MIG jets shot down.

This brought to five the two-day score of Soviet-made planes Israel said it has destroyed in dogfights above the blocked waterway.

In Cairo, a military communique quoted by the Middle East News Agency counterclaimed that one Israeli jet was hit in an aerial battle in which, at one point, about 20 Israeli and Egyptian planes took part.

The agency said the dogfight began when Egyptian jets intercepted four Israeli planes attacking targets in the central sector of the canal. The Israelis then sent in more jets, it added.

The Egyptian communique claimed the attacking planes were forced to flee while all Egyptian aircraft returned safely to base.

The Egyptian jets also were reported by the agency to have scored direct hits in a raid on Israeli tanks and other armament at El Cap and Kilo Ten in the northern sector of the waterway.

No aircraft losses were reported in this account.

The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said two MIG-17s were shot down during the morning in a battle over the canal and a third Egyptian jet-a MIG-21—was destroyed in a later encounter.

Before dusk, Egyptian planes returned to attack Israeli positions in the southern sector of the canal, the spokesman said. There were no casualties in the third enemy raid of the day, he added.

Two MIG-21s were claimed by Israeli pilots in dogfights over the waterway Thursday.

The claimed Israeli score of Egyptian warplanes shot down since the 1967 Arab-Israeli war now stands at 96.

Arab frogmen successfully penetrated the Israeli port of Elath on the Gulf of Aqaba, planting underwater mines which killed a 23-year-old Israeli civilian diver, the spokesman said.

The explosion was at the scene of salvage operations on an Israeli auxiliary vessel sunk three months ago by Arab frog-men in a similar attack. The civilian divers apparently were no longer in the water when a second explosion occurred two hours later.

There were no casualties from the second blast.

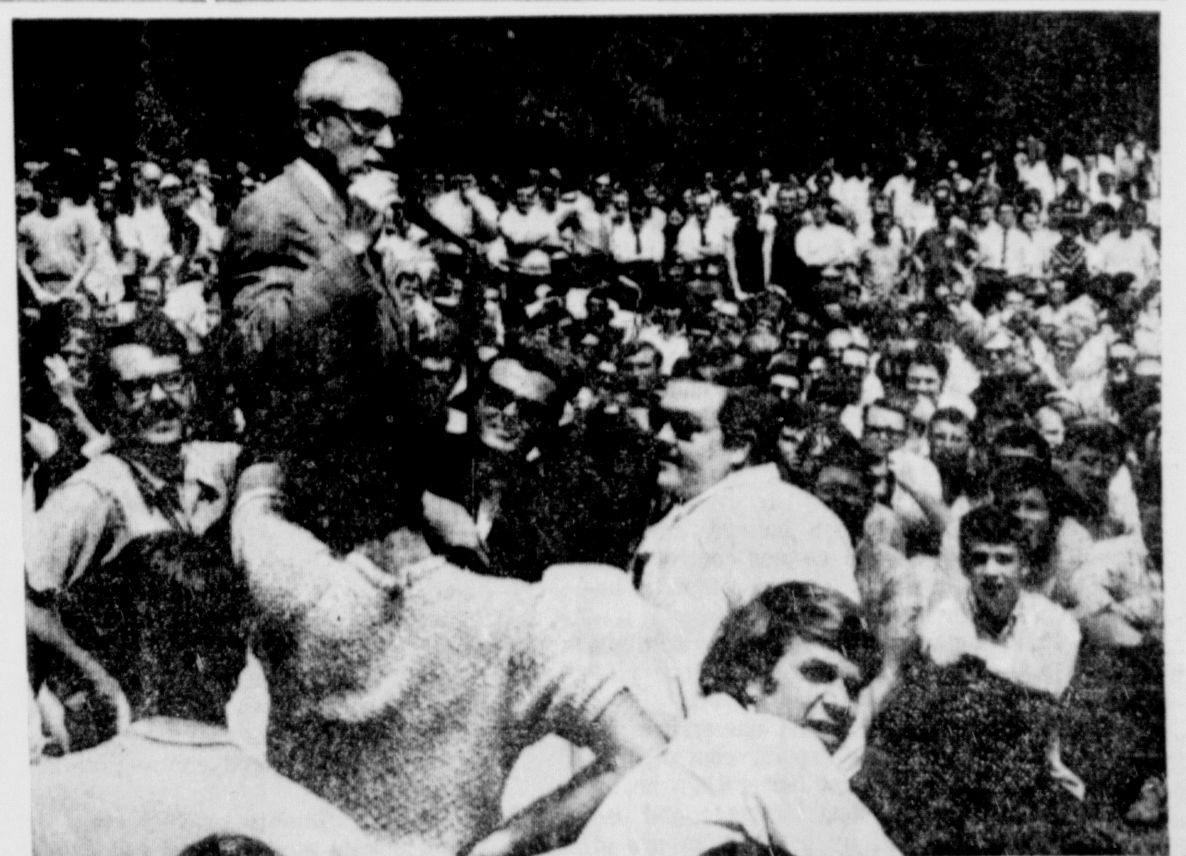

Two of the four crewmen missing when the Israeli trawler Odith was sunk by an Egyptian missile boat off the Sinai Peninsula Wednesday night turned up Friday.

A military announcement said Oded Kopelnik and Boaz Yitshaki, who were wearing lifebelts when their 70-ton vessel went down 11 m.s. offshore, reached the coast Thursday night.

They were found by Bedouins Friday morning and given food and hot drinks. The other two crewmen were reported still missing.

The two fishermen said they heard a "whistling noise"—apparently from an Egyptian missile—moments before the explosion which sank their trawler.

An Israeli Foreign Ministry spokesman in Tel Aviv told newsmen that Israel took a "grave view" of the sinking of "an innocent civilian ship."

CARBONDALE, ILL. — Southern Illinois University President Delyte W. Morris addresses a crowd of 2,000 to 2,500 people interested in reopening the university Wednesday. Chancellor Robert W. MacVicar closed the school Tuesday to meet the demands of 4,000 to 5,000 students. UPI Photo

The Church Tax Case

The Supreme Court's school prayer decisions have been widely misinterpreted as reflecting opposition to religion, or even disbelief in God. The fact is that in handing down those rulings the high court merely sought to reaffirm the doctrine of separation of church and state. That doctrine, which springs from the First Amendment clauses respecting freedom of worship, has served the nation well.

It is a fair guess that there also will be widespread misunderstanding of the Supreme Court's present ruling which says that states may grant tax exemptions to churches on property used exclusively for religious purposes. Some of those who found the school prayer decisions so disturbing may now feel that in this instance the Supreme Court is "on their side"—that it has in effect changed its mind and is now upholding religion.

This is no more warranted by what has occurred than was the earlier view that the Supreme Court was against religion. The tax exemption case, too, should be seen as a further effort to clarify the intent of the First Amendment. The churches obviously will benefit by continuance of tax exemption, but this is incidental to the court's finding that such exemption—at least as applied in New York, the state where the Walz case originated—does not breach the church-state wall of separation.

The opinion written by Chief Justice Burger and adopted by a seven to one vote rests heavily on the contention that long experience with granting tax-exempt status to churches shows this to be harmless. The one dissenter, Associate Justice Douglas, took issue with this. He fears that tax exemption and other government involvement with religion takes us "a long step down the establishment path."

That is a matter for concern, surely. Justice Douglas refers to the First Amendment provision that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion . . ." The chief justice argues that if tax exemption is regarded as a first step "the second step has been long in coming." One can hope the implication in this—that it probably never will come—is correct. At any rate, the high court has now laid down the law on a subject of fundamental significance.

Communication

To the Editor:

Your excellent and timely editorial in Sunday's paper entitled Revolutions Are Not Trifles should give us all serious food for thought. It is time we re-evaluate and assess our colleges and universities into which so much of our tax money is being channeled.

Some of the questions that should be answered are:

1. Is it the function of emotionally idealistic students, incited and used by radicals and revolutionaries, and inept college administrators and faculty, who cannot control their own campuses, to direct, even attempt to dictate, our foreign policy?

2. Is it the function of college administrators and faculty to infringe upon our judicial processes?

3. Should our colleges and universities be so devoid of moral and social control that some of the dorms are not better than brothels, and free love, obscene language and use of drugs are defended by some members of the faculties?

4. Is it the function of colleges and universities to close their doors and cease all instruction so that the students may engage in a political campaign?

5. Does academic freedom mean that students may break laws indiscriminately, attack and abuse those we pay to protect us, and even vandalize and burn down our property with impunity from the law?

The glib reply is that only a small minority engage in these activities. However, when administrators, faculty and students make little effort to control such activities, more often excusing and sympathizing with them, it is time to carefully consider whether our schools have not become too expensive to afford.

Freedom and right of protest seem to be a one-way street. The students and often faculty and administrators feel free to criticize, castigate and even vilify our President, Vice President, our flag, our police, our courts, etc. However, when deserved criticism is directed toward them they cry harassment, lack of understanding and communication, frustration, etc.

Isn't it time to gravely consider what is happening to our students and colleges: Have we sacrificed, scrimped and saved to have our girls and boys educated in these kinds of schools?

Reuther's Death May Affect UAW Negotiations

By A. F. MAHAN
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — With Walter P. Reuther dead, the big question that arises is what his death will mean to upcoming contract talks between his United Auto Workers union and the nation's car makers.

Already some observers on both sides here say Reuther's death in a plane crash has heightened possibilities of a strike—with its impact on the nation's economy.

Their reasoning: Both the union and the industry had taken tough stances even before the accident, and Gov. William Milliken had spoken of "an anticipated strike in the automobile industry" in an economic report to the Michigan Legislature.

Industry now fears the man who takes Reuther's place at the bargaining table in mid-July may come there determined to prove himself even tougher than his former chief.

The union fears, regardless of who is chosen union president after Reuther's funeral Friday, that the industry will lose no time in putting him to the test.

And there's fear elsewhere the next man may not have Reuther's sense of timing of when to give and take, a knack that won the UAW many firsts in industrial union contracts—a "guaranteed annual income," for instance.

Under the UAW constitution, Secretary-Treasurer Emil Mazyer became acting president, but the man who will head the union until its 1972 convention will be named by the remaining 25 members of the international executive board. Its next scheduled meeting is June 2.

The impact of auto industry pacts reached far beyond General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors. The 1.6 million-member UAW uses them as a pattern in bargaining in scores of auto supplier plants and in the aerospace and agricultural implement industries.

That adds to sideline pressures on both the companies and the union.

The Big Three—GM, Ford and Chrysler—have reported sagging sales and profits the last two quarters. With contracts expiring next Sept. 14, these three firms come up first for negotiations.

UAW leaders say members have been feeling the pinch of the rising cost of living, along with widespread layoffs. They have adopted a wide-ranging set of economic demands to override inflation.

The UAW will be attempting to work upward from a base wage averaging $4.02 hourly and a package of fringe benefits estimated to be worth $1.75 hourly.

Leonard Woodcock, a UAW vice president and its GM director, said if the union didn't do better than 15 per cent "we're certainly going to have a strike."

Chairman James M. Roche of General Motors, apparently anticipating stiff union demands, said earlier this year the industry has reached a "crisis of cost" and that "a better balance between productivity and wages will be a key objective in our 1970 negotiations."

Douglas Fraser, a UAW vice president and its Chrysler chief, says, "we should not let the economy intimidate us," and Woodcock quotes GM as telling stockholders it has "every reason to be optimistic . . . and expansion of the American economy, so vigorous in the 1960s, should continue."

"We're not going to bargain just about the rest of 1970 but about the future—1971, 1972 and 1973," Reuther had said.

The Nixon administration has urged restraint on the part of both management and labor in new contract bargaining.

The recent UAW convention adopted a set of demands that includes a "substantial wage increase," and, among other things, earlier retirement at higher pensions, removal of the cap that now limits annual cost-of-living increases to eight cents hourly and the addition of company-paid dental care.

None of the Big Three has indicated what it may offer in 1970. Some anticipate GM may give at least an idea where it will put up most resistance when stockholders meet here May 22.

Medicaid Crisis Perils Hospitals

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) — If you want to get properly humble about the limited value of big government money outlays as a problem cure-all, take a look at the crisis in the nation's health field.

Together, government and private expenditures for health today are running in excess of $60 billion, which amounts to about 7 per cent of the country's Gross National Product. This compares with an estimated $73.5 billion in federal defense spending for the fiscal year starting this July 1.

Health care expenses have been bounding upward incredibly. They rose more than 12 per cent in one year. They are taking a larger and larger bite of the GNP and may approach 10 per cent of the total by the end of the 1970s.

With the launching of Medicare and Medicaid programs four years ago, government money is accounting for a steadily bigger share of this rising total. For 20 years after World War II, those public outlays hung around 25 per cent of the total health dollar. Now they come to 37.5 per cent, two-thirds of it federal money.

In spite of all this, Columbia University's respected American Assembly, recently drawing together a large panel of experts to discuss the health of Americans, produced a report which says:

"Steeply rising costs and inaccessibility of care have created widespread dissatisfaction with the delivery of personal health services. The delivery system itself cannot much longer withstand assaults from over-demand, undersupply and disorganization. Unchanged, it will break down."

The problems involved in the health crisis are far too vast and complex even to be touched lightly in a single column. I intend here to deal only with one segment of the issue—that pertaining to Medicaid.

Medicaid is rigidly tied to Social Security contributors and provides health care largely for the elderly. Medicaid, heavily financed by regular U.S. Treasury funds bequeathed by outlays from state-local sources, tries to provide medical benefits for those who cannot qualify under Social Security and are deemed "medically indigent."

This program not only includes some of the elderly but can include needy children under 21 (and their parents), and needy people of any age who are blind or otherwise disabled. A high proportion of the 50 states participate.

Medicaid, aside from its outrageously soaring total costs, is giving the nation's hospitals absolute fits. For many, their critical problem is not their own rising costs but simply their inability to get the money that is owed them by the public insurers of their patients.

A spokesman for the American Hospital Association told me that, in hospitals with from 100 to 150 beds, these institutions generally are suffering a minimum of 60 days' delay and a maximum of 100 days in receiving funds due them under Medicaid.

Complaints are pouring in at a great rate, and countless hospitals are in a very shaky position. There have been some scare stories about some of them closing down or moving to the suburbs, but I could not substantiate these.

Ann Landers:

Sorry Son Made Ivy League School

Dear Ann Landers: Please print this letter so "Heartbroken Mother" will see it. She's the woman whose brilliant son didn't get into Harvard, Yale or Dartmouth. Our son was accepted by all three and now I wish he had gone to a nice school in the Midwest.

When Jack left home, he was a mannerly, respectful boy, neat and clean—a joy to his mother's heart. After two years out East, the boy's hair is so long it makes me sick. His moustache drifts in the soup. He wears sandals, faded jeans and love beads. He argues with his dad about politics and has brought such radical kids home for weekends that we told him to come alone from now on or stay up there. I thought I'd have a heart attack when Jack announced last week, "The only salvation for this country is to burn everything down and start again."

I hope every mother whose son didn't make the Ivy League will see this and consider herself fortunate. Ours did and I am—Sorry.

Dear Sorry: It's not the Ivy, it's Jack. Even the quiet midwestern schools have their share of nutty radicals who want to burn everything down. Your son would have found his soul-mates.

The majority of the students at the Ivy schools are not in sympathy with the wild-eyed far left. In fact they are getting fed up with having their education interrupted by a handful of kooks. And I say it's about time.

Dear Ann Landers: I am being married in June and my mother is driving me nuts. She insists that the white aisle cloth be put down AFTER the groom's mother is seated. The reason is obvious. She wants to walk on it first.

I've asked several people what is the correct procedure and nobody knows. I'm afraid my fiancée's mother will be hurt when she sees the aisle cloth laid down after she is seated. The two women don't get along very well as it is. This could be the straw that breaks the camel's back. I'm sure you have figured out that my mother is a strong person—considers herself right in all matters and has never made a mistake in her life. Comment, please.—Mayfield, Ky.

Dear May: Since your mother has probably already walked on water, she shouldn't make such a big deal out of walking on the aisle cloth first. I hope she reconsiders in the interest of peace and harmony.

Dear Ann Landers: I boiled when I read the letter from the teacher who resented having a diabetic child in her class. She said the kid was wasting the taxpayers' money by disrupting the class to go to the bathroom several times a day and eating mid-morning snacks.

As a college junior who has had diabetes for many years, I'd like to tell her how sorry I am that I wasted the taxpayers' money and inconvenienced my teachers by going to the bathroom and eating mid-morning snacks.

I am also sorry she is allowed to teach. With her attitude she should not be in the school system. I hope her signature gave no clue as to her identity because I'll bet there are several million diabetics who would love to wring her neck.—Insulin Izzy

Dear Iz: I am neither diabetic nor do I have any diabetic relatives, but "include me in."

Law For Today

Q. When my second husband and I were married, I signed an agreement that I wouldn't make any claims on his estate. At the same time, a trust fund was established for his married sons. Since then we've acquired a home, stocks, and some additional property—all of which are listed in joint tenancy with right of survivorship with only my husband and myself as joint tenants. How would the premarital agreement affect my claim to these properties in the event of my husband's death?

A. Most likely it will have no effect since items held in joint tenancy with right of survivorship do not become part of the estate. In addition, a person can leave property to his spouse by will if he so chooses, and this will not abrogate the premarital agreement.

SATURDAY BRUNCH
Frost those muffins!
Pineapple and Strawberry Cup
Scrambled Eggs Bacon
Frosted Corn Muffins Beverage
FROSTED CORN MUFFINS
1 1/4 cups sifted flour
3/4 cup enriched cornmeal
1/4 cup sugar
4 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup chopped (medium fine) walnuts
2 tablespoons finely chopped candied orange peel
3/4 cup milk
1 egg
1/4 cup vegetable oil

Frosting, see below

Into a medium mixing bowl sift together the flour, cornmeal, sugar, baking powder and salt. Stir in walnuts and orange peel. Beat together milk, egg and oil; add to dry ingredients and stir only until moistened. Fill greased medium-size muffin cups 2-3d full. Bake in preheated 425-degree oven until golden brown—15 to 20 minutes. Remove from pan and drizzle with Frosting. Serve warm with butter. Makes 12.

Frosting: Mix together until smooth 1 teaspoon soft butter, 1/2 cup sifted confectioners' sugar and 4 teaspoons milk.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Smokers Rebreathe
Some Of Air Exhaled

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.

Q—In what way would moderate cigarette smoking, over a period of 20 years without ever inhaling, affect the lungs?

A—Smoking cigarettes without inhaling is a good trick if you can do it. This shouldn't cause any lung damage, but recent studies have shown that smokers rebreathe a certain amount of the air they exhale and that it may contain a dangerous level of carbon monoxide, the silent killer.

Q—Does smoking cigarettes affect a person's vision?

A—The carbon monoxide in the smoke, especially if inhaled, can cause impaired vision. The smoke in the exhaled air may irritate your conjunctiva.

Q—My husband, 72, is seldom without a pipe in his mouth. He has a habit of rubbing the hot pipe stem over his lips. Could this lead to cancer of the lips?

A—Yes.

a woman's legs enlarge to form spider veins? Can they be prevented by taking vitamins?

A—The so-called spider veins are associated with aging and with pregnancy. In some persons, they may be an inherited trait. They can't be prevented by diet or drugs.

Q—There are several prominent capillaries on the surface of my nose. Is electrolysis the best way to get rid of them? Would this be done by a plastic surgeon or a skin specialist?

A—These capillaries can be removed with an electric needle by a skin specialist but new ones may keep on forming. In the long run, masking cosmetics may be the best treatment.

Q—What causes pseudomonas? Is there any cure for it?

A—The Pseudomonas aeruginosa is a pus-forming bacterium commonly found in water and soil. It will not invade healthy tissues but may gain a foothold in a wound or in the body of a person who has been taking antibiotics. (Ordinarily, such pus-forming germs as staphylococci hold it in check.) If the infection is localized, washing the wound with 1 per cent acetic acid may be all that is needed. For a persistent infection, nitrofurazone, streptomycin and tetracycline are effective if they can be brought into contact with the infected part.

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What kind of a marriage is that: The Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra and the hard-rock group, the Mothers of Invention?

It's taking place tonight at UCLA's basketball pavilion when the two disparate musical organizations join to present excerpts from "200 Motels, for Mothers and Orchestra," composed by Frank Zappa.

This will be the world premiere of what will eventually be a 2 1/2-hour work by Zappa, leader of the Mothers of Invention. The final version will be scored, according to the composer, for orchestra, chorus, narrator, soprano soloist, three dancers, industrial vacuum cleaner, a noisy 16mm movie projector and a dental health film.

The union with the Medusa-haired Zappa would be enough to send the dowager supporters of the Philharmonic into a case of the vapors, but the orchestra's conductor, India-born Zubin Mehta, is taking it calmly.

"Many of the great composers like Bartok and DeFalla used the folk music of their times to integrate into their compositions," he said in his Music Center office. "Aaron Copland has used American folk music in his symphonic works. Gershwin, too."

"Rock is certainly the folk music of the present time in the United States. So why not try to use it in classical surroundings?"

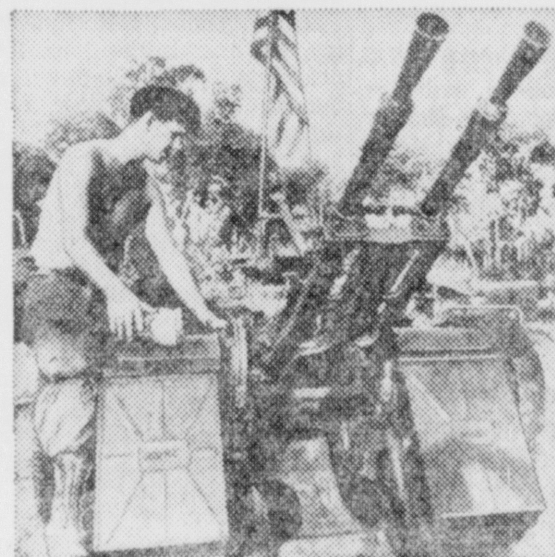

The collaboration with the Mothers of Invention is not a marriage, he insisted, since the rock group is improvisational and the Philharmonic is not.

"It is like free love," Mehta theorized. "Two people meet and display a fascination for each other. They make love and then they part. But they do not form any kind of permanent alliance."

He emphasized that the concert was not a stunt, but a serious effort to combine the pop and classical forms.

COLONEL'S SIGN GETS O.K.

FROM ZONING COMMISSION OF APPEALS

By a vote of 7 to 0, the commission comprised of outstanding Jacksonville citizens, Tom Cornish, Dean Floreth, Charles Gano, Harold Hills, R. W. Roach, Elmer Sample, Albert Whewell, ruled in favor of the new Kentucky Fried Chicken sign, to be in front of its building. The city council will take the matter up soon. The new store is on the corner of West St. and West Morton. Drive by today, most of you have already paid for a brick or two; it would not be standing if it weren't for you anyway.

GOOD NEWS

"Too good to believe!" Sometimes we receive news so joyous that we are almost afraid to accept it — the birth of a child, a crisis past, a successful business venture. Yet the greatest good news that can be ours, we often take for granted and lose the profound joy of it.

What if we had never heard the message which the Christian Church proclaims? What if we knew nothing of a Saviour who died that all men might be forgiven, who gives us the assurance of everlasting life!

If this good news were revealed to us suddenly, we might well say, "It's so good that it's hard to believe." But it has been verified by countless millions of believers in all lands, through many generations. We accept it in our own hearts, and the confirmation becomes personal.

We know, then, that in the Christian Church we hear the best news that has ever come to the human race.

Introduce Bill Requiring Judge OK Guard Use

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill to require a governor to get federal court approval before using National Guard units in civil disturbances was introduced in the House Thursday.

Rep. Richard L. Ottinger, D-N.Y., calling the recent slaying of four Kent State University students by Ohio guardsmen a national disgrace, introduced a bill, he said, to prevent this kind of tragedy in the future.

Under the bill, a federal judge would have to find that disturbances were beyond the capacities of local authorities to control—and that there was evidence those involved in the disturbance would be armed—before he could grant a governor's request for the use of guardsmen.

The measure also would require that any guardsmen assigned to such duty must have training in riot control.

All marsupials, with the exception of the opossums of America and a few others, make their homes in Australia and nearby regions.

YOUR BIRTHDAY HOROSCOPE

SATURDAY, MAY 16—Born today, you never make the mistake of trying to change circumstances when the thing to change is yourself. You do not blame others for your own faults; neither do you attempt to escape the consequences of your own mistakes. Rather, you stand behind all of your decisions and activities, ready to take either praise or blame. You possess a delightful personality and are intent upon making the most of it by developing your inner self to the utmost of your ability.

You possess considerable creative talent. It could well be that you will find your forte, however, not in the actual production of works of art, but in aiding others in the production of it. Should you be fortunate enough to be materially wealthy, you will not hesitate to spend much of what you have in the furtherance of others' artistic careers. The success of those you help brings you your greatest pleasure.

You find it difficult to accept authority—but you are wise enough to realize the necessity for discipline. You demand a great deal of yourself and are inclined to demand the same of others. This last, however, may well be a mistake on your part; you would do well to realize that not everyone is capable of the sort of performance you might like to have.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Sunday, May 17
TAURUS (April 21-May 21)—Take what is positive and enjoyable in your day and be grateful for it. Other aspects can be ignored if you like.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)—Natural talent is sufficient to make this an enjoyable day. Use this Sunday to get to know yourself and others somewhat better.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)—Consider your personal shortcomings before deciding definitely on your future. You don't want to bite off more than you can chew.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—Let your self-confidence dictate your Sunday pursuits. You may be called upon to help others satisfy a wish for success.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)—Make every effort not to appear cold and standoffish to others. You may wish to be alone—but you may not be allowed to be.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)—Spiritual faith may well be tested today. Your powers of concentration should come in handy when you are challenged.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)—A day for unwinding. Let your nerves lie undisturbed today as you take things calmly. Evening is for quiet entertainment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)—Your artistic and creative gifts should stand you in excellent stead this Sunday when others need them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)—Bend all your energies to the accomplishment of a single Sunday goal. This is not the time to display all your talents.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)—You may be giving in to a tendency to worry too much about the past and not enough about the future. Avoid this.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 21)—The trusting Pisces must at the same time be wise. Otherwise, you may well find yourself confiding in one who will betray you.

ARIES (March 22-April 20)—The self-centered Aries must take care not to lose touch with the outside world. Morning worship can come to the rescue.

Time Was Right For Cambodia

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — It is becoming increasingly apparent the Nixon administration decided to hit the enemy sanctuaries in Cambodia because the right conditions had arisen, rather than as a result of a major new military thrust.

The key to opening the way for U.S. and South Vietnamese forces to hit the enemy's long-secure base complex was the overthrow in March of Cambodia's neutralist chief of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

Until the new regime led by Premier Lon Nol took over, the United States felt it had

Will Prosecute All Rioters In Madison

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill. (AP) —

A resolution urging prosecution of all persons involved in demonstrations that result in violence was adopted this week by the Madison County Board of Supervisors.

The resolution was adopted Wednesday in Edwarsville, site of a branch of Southern Illinois University.

Sponsor Edward D. Vounard Sr. of Alton township told the board that since the American entry into Cambodia, "we have seen a culmination of our permissive dealing with an errant, violent, dangerous and lewd minority."

Vounard commended Edwarsville veterans who refused to permit college demonstrators to lower the American flag at the Edwarsville Post Office and stood guard to protect it.

The supervisor also warned of the danger of vigilante action if protest demonstrations continued.

Later Wednesday, the Madison County Sheriff's Department moved to head off formation of a vigilante group which had been under consideration by veterans' groups.

Sheriff George Musso took the first step toward organizing a sheriff's reserve to lure those who feel they, personally, have to take some action to protect their community.

About 80 men signed applications at the first meeting of the proposed unit Wednesday night.

Musso said members of the reserve would not be armed and would be trained to operate in conjunction with civil defense authorities.

Soviets To Stay Out Of Cambodia

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON

Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP)—Soviet authorities privately are ruling out any possibility of active military cooperation with Red China against the Americans in Indochina, some Asian and European diplomats reported Friday.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Saturday, May 16, the 136th day of 1970. There are 229 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1775, the first state constitution in the United States was adopted by Massachusetts.

On this date:

In 1770, Marie Antoinette was married to Louis XVI of France. In 1866, the U.S. Treasury Department was authorized to mint a five-cent piece—the nickel.

In 1903, George Wyman left San Francisco for New York by motorcycle. He wheeled into New York two months later, becoming the first man to cross the continent by motorcycle.

In 1927, during prohibition, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that bootleggers must file income tax returns.

In 1935, the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia signed a mutual assistance pact.

In 1953, Czechoslovakia released Associated Press Correspondent William N. Oatis after holding him in prison for nearly two years on spy charges.

Ten years ago — A Big Four summit conference in Paris collapsed as the Soviets leveled charges against the United States after a reconnaissance flight over the Soviet Union by an American U2 plane.

Five years ago — French police began a series of arrests that thwarted a bomb attempt on the life of President Charles de Gaulle.

One year ago — A Soviet spaceship reached the vicinity of Venus and dropped a capsule which sent back information on the planet's atmosphere.

Three Illinois GIs Casualties In Indochina

WASHINGTON (AP) — The names of three Illinois men were on the latest casualty list from the war in Southeast Asia released Thursday.

Killed in action was Army Spec. 4 Peter J. Martinez Jr., son of Mrs. Osabell C. Bonilla, 2434 S. Springfield Ave., Chicago.

Changed from missing to dead hostile was Army WO 1 Edgar D. Berner, husband of Mrs. Barbara J. Berner, c-o Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Berner, RFD 4, Marshall.

Dead not as a result of hostile action was Army Sgt. John A. Marr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl E. Marr, 4091 Courland Terrace, Rockford.

POTLUCK HONORS REBEKAH MOTHERS AND DAUGHTERS

Members and guests attended the May 7 meeting of Caritas Rebekah Lodge 625 at the IOOF Temple when the lodge honored mothers and daughters with a potluck dinner.

Ollie Mae Hill, noble grand, presided with pro tem officers Mildred Wilkinson and Francis Reagan.

Glenn Dickman escorted 21 mothers to the noble grand's station, who presented each one with a gift. Betty DeSilva accompanied by Agnes Haynes, honored them with a song. A corsage was presented to the oldest mother, Ethel Bourne, and to the youngest, Evelyn Meadows.

Lonnie Kitzelman introduced Rev. Evans, who delightfully entertained with a Mother's Day theme program. Poems and group singing were enjoyed by all.

The noble grand conducted a short business session. Reports were heard and contribution was made to Theta Rho. Mabel Bolton announced that a salad luncheon would be held at the Temple between 10 and 11 a.m. May 21. A bazaar will be held at the same time.

Margaret Tayman was in charge of the potluck supper held before the meeting and program. Appreciation was extended to her and to all who assisted. Lonnie Kitzelman was in charge of entertainment.

The next meeting will be May 21.

Informal Chinese efforts have been suggesting a reconciliation with the Russians to meet the challenge of President Nixon's intervention in Cambodia.

These diplomats said they have been told by senior Soviet colleagues any renewed Russian-Chinese cooperation would require a Chinese initiative. None has been sighted, and Moscow has no proposals to offer.

The informants have been in touch with high Soviet officials. Their informal exchanges have been reported to their home governments. The accounts they offered of Soviet thinking have been checked and crosschecked, examined against Moscow's actions and pronouncements and seem to have an authoritative ring.

The Soviet Union's policy, according to the informants, was summarized thus:

—The Kremlin is ready to provide all military aid for North Vietnam, and other left-wing Indochinese forces, short of manpower. This contrasts with unofficial Chinese talk of enlisting volunteers for service in Indochinese battle zones if they are needed.

—The Kremlin is resolved to avoid any direct confrontation with the Americans in, or over,

Indochina. This ties in with a Western belief that Moscow would not mind watching the Chinese and Americans slug it out in the region.

—The Kremlin is ready to go on providing the North Vietnamese with all the arms and equipment needed to replace the losses sustained during the American - South Vietnamese sweep through Cambodia.

Soviet circumspection over the Indochina crisis has been reflected in official actions and pronouncements.

The government-in-exile of Cambodia's Prince Norodom Sihanouk, based in Peking, has yet to be recognized by the Russians. China and several other Asian Communist states have done so.

Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, while denouncing the U.S. thrust into Cambodia, did not go beyond threatening appropriate countermeasures. Their nature has yet to emerge.

1,000's Attend Reuther Funeral Observance

DETROIT (AP) — Walter P. Reuther was eulogized as "a giant among men" and "an architect of ideas" as the nation and his United Auto Workers Union paid final tribute to him and his wife, May, in simple funeral services Friday.

There were 11 speakers, but no religious rites for Reuther, reared a Lutheran, and his wife, reared in Judaism. They and four others died in a union-chartered jet plane's crash in northern Lower Michigan last weekend.

There was no funeral procession. The bodies were to be cremated.

More than 3,000 crowded Ford Auditorium in Detroit's Civic Center for the services while hundreds more heard them over loudspeakers outside. Thousands more who took the day off to mourn gathered in union halls to watch and hear by television and radio.

Among those inside were 10 U.S. senators, former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, two cabinet officers, the governor and three former governors of Michigan, the board chairman of America's four major auto companies and Mayors John V. Lindsay of New York and Roman Gribbs of Detroit.

In many auto plants, workers were sent home when absenteeism prevented assembly lines from operating, or when workers walked out after observing a period of silence in memory of Reuther.

Spokesmen for the companies said more than 31,000 workers were idled by the plant shutdowns in Michigan, Ohio, Georgia, Missouri and Illinois.

At the funeral, leaders of industry and government mingled with men from the work benches of the automotive, aerospace, agricultural implements and kindred industries where the UAW's 1.6 million members labor.

Dave Miller, chairman of the UAW's Retired Workers Council, eulogized the UAW president as "a man who created a new life and a new world for workers in the plants" and "a dignity in retirement."

Coretta King, widow of slain civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., remembered Reuther as "one who was always there when the storm clouds were thickest... a man who marched with us and one who had the courage to be with the minority when it was right."

The firm initiative against the poorly equipped Cambodian government forces.

Informed sources in Saigon said the allied drives into the sanctuary area have restricted the enemy's efforts in South Vietnam. The informants said they had seen Communist command campaign plans calling for sustained or stepped-up action in various places, but the allied thrusts into Cambodia had prevented the plans from being carried out.

Thus far the drive into eastern Cambodia has cost the Americans 115 killed and 474 wounded.

In Laos the Defense Ministry reported that North Vietnamese forces had attacked several outposts west and southwest of Saravane, a provincial capital on the Bolovens Plateau, the rice bowl of southern Laos. Two rockets were fired at Saravane itself but caused no damage.

A North Vietnamese regiment was reported moving toward Paksong, 40 miles south of Saravane, and the main town on the plateau. Civilians were evacuated from Saravane, and Paksong was described as encircled by enemy forces.

Vatican Urges 'Fair' Analysis In History Study

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican ordered Catholic universities and seminaries Friday to present historical religious controversies with greater balance.

It also urged more care in the writing of textbooks and said these works "should faithfully set out the opinions of other Christians on matters of theology, history and spirituality."

The ecumenical document, released by Jan Cardinal Willebrands, the Vatican's No. 1 expert on Christian unity work, made no mention of specific controversies but it instructed Roman Catholic institutions of higher learning to review their "style and ways of teaching history... so that in dealing with Christian society, full consideration is given to the different Christian communities and their whole way of life is understood."

"The events and personalities involved in the various religious divisions should be dealt with fairly and the many attempts to restore unity and bring about renewal in the Church should not be overlooked," the document said.

Much Catholic literature on Martin Luther, the Augustinian monk who broke from the Church to found a Protestant church; John Hus, the Czech reformer burned at the stake for heresy in 1415, and other such figures has been deemed one-sided.

The document Cardinal Willebrands issued will involve some revision of this literature.

In a way, the action parallels that urged by a 1965 decree of the Second Vatican Council with regard to Roman Catholic teaching on historical references to Jews.

Catholic and Jewish groups have formed committees and done studies to assure revision of offensive descriptions of Jews in Catholic religion and history textbooks.

The document issued Friday also urges collaboration between Catholic and Protestant seminaries, including sharing of books, libraries, classrooms and in some cases of professors.

It recommends that Catholic seminarians and other students who take religious-oriented instructions from non-Catholics be firmly grounded in their own faith but open to dialogue.

Black Cosmetic Line Planned By Black Model

NEW YORK (AP) — Naomi Sims, one of the country's best-known Negro models, announced Friday a plan to make black even more beautiful.

"Black women have an inferiority complex concerning their physical appearance and I want to give them confidence," she said, detailing plans for a line of cosmetics tailored to the needs of black women.

Miss Sims, 21, who has graced the pages of Vogue and Life, said, "Black women want the same genuine psychological boost out of cosmetics that other women do, and one simply does not get that glorious feeling of glamor by adding burnt cork to the darkest shade of sun tan powder available."

Miss Sims, clad in a billowing yellow chiffon creation that covered tight-fitting black pants, said, "A woman should always use some makeup but it should have a natural look." And, she added, "natural is the way black men want their women to look."

The natural look means "cosmetics should not minimize the lip shape that many Negro women have. Cosmetics should bring out the best features in a woman and those include her lips."

She was wearing a shade of lipstick she described as pink luster—but which appeared to be absolutely colorless—when she unveiled plans for her venture over wine and croissants at a breakfast meeting at a French restaurant.

Miss Sims, who will be president of the cosmetics company hopes to introduce her products—called Naomi—in nine months through prestige outlets across the country.

Several companies already serve the Negro market for cosmetics. But the Naomi spokesman says that "most black cosmetics are just variations of preparations for whites."

The United States Capitol's professional guide system stems indirectly from the Philadelphia Centennial Exposition of 1876. Near chaos occurred when hordes of sightseers moved on to Washington from the Exposition, prompting Congress to appoint guides to organize the crowds while describing the Capitol's wonders.

Berkeley Chancellor:

Nation's Campuses Provide Safety Valve

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The head of one of the nation's most troubled campuses says colleges and universities have performed "an important service" to the country by absorbing the initial brunt of social unrest and discontent.

Roger W. Heyns, chancellor of the University of California at Berkeley, told the American Society of Newspaper Editors Thursday that "had the unrest and discontent initially been targeted on other institutions, the impact on society might have been much worse."

Despite the uproar and violence on the nation's campuses, he said, "universities have strengthened our students' faith in our basic freedoms and democratic ideals."

"Hostility on the part of the public complicated our task not a little," he added.

What has been learned by the establishment because of campus turmoil has helped the other institutions of society, he said.

In a question-answer session following his speech, he was asked his reaction to Gov. Ronald Reagan's statement that there is something conspiratorial behind campus turmoil. "I don't believe it," Heyns said. Heyns added that radicals may communicate with each other but said there is no "apparatus giving orders."

Regarding the governor's statement that trouble makers should be expelled if they are students and fired if they are professors, he said:

"Probation by far has been the most effective technique for modifying behavior. If you kick someone out, that means he goes across the street and works at disruptive activity full time."

In a panel discussion, Sam Brown, a leader of the defunct Vietnam Moratorium, told the editors they had failed to establish communications with persons under 25.

W. D. Workman, Jr., editor of the Columbia, S.C. State-Record, responded, "We can't find anyone who speaks for young people any more than for black people."

Workman said newspapers, particularly in the South, have restrained many people from attacking demonstrators and "those who destroy universities." Without such restraint, Workman said, dissidents "would be stomped into the ground."

The society also announced Thursday elections of board of directors members: three-year terms, Howard H. Hays, Riverside, Calif.; Press-Enterprise; Warren H. Phillips, Wall Street Journal; John H. Sengstacke, Chicago Defender; Sylvan Meyer, Miami, Fla. News, and Emmett Dedmon, Chicago Sun-Times and Daily News; two-year term, George Chaplin, Honolulu Advertiser.

Outgoing president Norman E. Isaacs, 62-year-old executive editor and vice president of the Courier-Journal and the Louisville Times, announced he is retiring from active newspaper work.

Isaacs said he has accepted a position with the Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism to help operate a newspaper workshop.

TROOPER STEVE DAVIDSON, left, a member of the traffic safety division of the Illinois State Police, discusses the forthcoming annual Free Safety Check Lane which starts in Jacksonville with a sneak preview Sunday afternoon, with Paul Watkins, one of three co-chairmen with the Jacksonville Police Department. Davidson secured much of the free information concerning traffic safety which will be distributed to Jacksonville area motorists who take advantage of the 10-point free inspection next week. Regular hours Monday through Saturday of next week will be from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. The sneak preview will be held Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m.

Ohio University Closes; Students Stream Home

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — National Guardsmen fenced off Ohio University from the Athens business district Friday while thousands of students, ousted when the university closed because of disorders, headed for home.

Armed National Guardsmen moved into downtown Athens at daybreak after University President Claude R. Sowle gave up his attempts to keep the university open. They were posted 10-feet apart along streets edging the campus.

Some guardsmen directed traffic as cars loaded with some of the 18,000 students enrolled here streamed out of town. University controlled housing was ordered vacated by noon Saturday.

It was the sixth college or university in Ohio to shut down in the face of student disorders, generally linked to antiwar protests, and left Ohio, at least temporarily, without a major university operating. Two state universities — Miami at Oxford and Ohio State at Columbus — are to reopen respectively on Monday and Tuesday.

Two private institutions will also reopen Monday but Kent State University, where four students were slain in a confrontation with National Guardsmen May 4, is closed until June 22.

The shutdowns put more than 120,000 students out of classes in Ohio.

Most of the 1,500 National Guardsmen sent here were camped at the Athens County fairgrounds. A small, undisciplined number of troops went into the city.

A spokesman in the office of Gov. James A. Rhodes at Columbus, said troop withdrawals could start tomorrow.

In the final two nights of disorders 26 persons were hurt and five were admitted to hospitals in good condition.

Forty-eight persons were arrested during the disturbances. Sowle's decision to close the university came after two consecutive days of unruly student demonstrations and riots.

The Thursday night trouble erupted when 2,000 students

THIEVES HIT STATION 3rd TIME IN MONTH

JERSEYVILLE — The Goetlen Mobil Service Station on South State street was robbed for the third time within a month this week but the only items taken were 78 cents from the cash register and a small amount of silver taken from a cigar box.

gathered near the campus and began throwing rocks and bricks and police lobbed gas back to break up the crowd.

Police drove several hundred protesters off the campus green and were in the process of breaking up the group when guardsmen arrived.

Sowle closed the university until June 22, the start of summer term, and asked students to leave the campus as quickly as possible.

Students are to be notified by letter next week of the options available with respect to grades and credit for this quarter's academic work. There was no immediate announcement concerning spring commencement scheduled for June 14.

The break-in was discovered by Patrolman Howard Sandberg while on patrol. A window in the back of the station was broken and the glass removed to permit the intruder to enter the place.

Mrs. Grace Grizzle, cook at the Little White House cafe on South State, reported to city police at 5 a.m. Monday that someone had entered the cafe during the night. Only a small amount of money in pennies was taken from the cash register, and the intruder scattered some of the pennies all over the floor.

Lengthy Session

ROODHOUSE GIRL HURT WHEN RIDING CYCLE

ROODHOUSE — Patty Sheppard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Sheppard, Jr., of Roodhouse, was knocked from the motorcycle she was riding with Terry Staley, Sunday, May 10. She was treated at the White Hall hospital for severe abrasions. She was later released.

The motorcycle was going south on State Route 267 and swerved to avoid collision with a car which pulled onto the highway in front of them. The driver of the car, Dick Hayes of Winchester, stated he pulled onto the highway just as he noticed the motorcycle. He stated his view from the north was blocked by two cars parked on the west side of Route 267 in front of the Wareco Station. Mr. Staley received minor abrasions.

Mother's Day visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Bess were members of their family as follows, some of which spent the weekend here: Mr. and Mrs. Ed Coats and Rhea Admire, Elkville; Mr. and Mrs. John Seibold, Joyce and Mike, Granite City; Mr. and Mrs. John R. Bess and Bobette, Carol Ann, Toni, Tracie, Melanie, J. R., Jr., Divernon; and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Fisher and Susie, White Hall.

LOYAL DAUGHTERS OF WHITE HALL HAVE LUNCHEON

WHITE HALL — The Loyal Daughters class of the First Christian church met at the home of Mrs. Leonard Whitney May 1 with a covered dish luncheon. Mrs. Whitney said grace. Present were 17 members and two guests, Mrs. Allen Brannan and Mrs. Otto Lyman.

Dorothy M. Young, president, presided at the business meeting. A prayer was led by the teacher of the class, Mrs. Anna Overton.

Roll was Bible verses and quotations, and the group voted to have a picnic supper at the Lions Park on June 10 with husbands of members and guests attending.

Mrs. Orval Blair had devotions, her subject, The Lord's Prayer. Treasurer Ruth Rochester announced the class had paid their half of the cost of book racks for the backs of the church pews.

WHITE HALL PNC'S IN PETREY HOME

WHITE HALL — Mrs. John Petrey and Mrs. Emery Smith were hostesses for the meeting of the P.N.G. club, Adams Rebekah Lodge 375, at the Petrey home Wednesday, May 13, with a potluck supper.

Ada Brannan, chaplain, was welcomed back after several months of absence due to illness and being in a nursing home; she gave the prayer of grace.

Ten members attended. Mrs. Petrey, president, had charge of the business which opened with the pledge and Lord's Prayer in unison led by Mrs. Brannan. Roll was answered with current events. The June meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Edwin Nortrop. A social hour of bunco followed.

Law Agencies Questioned In Panther Probe

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal grand jury investigating a police raid in which two Black Panthers were killed said Friday the performance of law enforcement agencies in the case "gives some reasonable basis for public doubt of their efficiency or even of their credibility."

The panel said "the testimony of the officers involved is materially inconsistent with the physical evidence."

It said, however, it could not resolve the problems and determine whether any civil rights were violated because of the refusal of the Panthers involved to testify.

Two Panther leaders, Fred Hampton and Mark Clark, were killed in the Dec. 4 raid on Hampton's apartment. Seven were arrested.

The seven declined to testify on the ground that the jury was not formed of their peers.

The jury of leading Chicagoans appointed by the coroner included 21 whites and two Negroes.

The grand jury report said a search of the apartment after the raid by technicians from the Chicago Police Department and the Cook County state's attorney's office was superficial and disorganized. It said the search uncovered only 77 of 151 pieces of "ballistically identifiable evidence," ultimately taken from the apartment by other officials.

"Any crime scene investigation which uncovers barely half the relevant evidence must be seriously questioned," the report said.

The grand jury also was critical of the Panthers for refusing to testify.

"Given the political nature of the Panthers, the grand jury is forced to conclude that they are

Business — Market Wrapup

Business Mirror

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Influential economists and investment advisers in this area are expressing alarm at the present confused state of the economy and have become increasingly critical of government fiscal and monetary policy.

Phrases such as money panic, money market chaos and financial collapse have appeared in their evaluations, although not always for the same reasons.

The nearest they come to agreement is that there is a shortage of capital to finance government and corporate spending plans. The goal of controlling inflation by curtailing spending, they say, has collided with spending needs.

As a result, they say, interest rates may continue to soar, cutting into corporate profits and leading to the collapse of some stock prices.

Some feel more money should be released to finance these programs. Others maintain that spending plans must be scrapped. Talk of credit controls, and even of controls on wages and prices, are becoming commonplace.

Ironically, expectations that the economy is attempting to resume its expansion, without the capital to do so, are viewed as contributory to possible further disorder in stock and bond markets.

John Wright of Wright Investors Service, blames "excessive severity and persistence" of Federal Reserve Board restraint as leading to a "strangulation of capital markets."

He calls the present stock-bond market chaos, "The Buras capital crisis," in reference to Chairman Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board. The Fed, he said, must release new credit to the economy.

"The time to fear financial collapse is now," said Wright, a stock market conservative. He noted that the federal government last week nearly failed to market its own bonds, and was rescued at the last minute because the Federal Reserve stepped in and made purchases.

Asked if more credit wouldn't simply add fuel to the fires of inflation, Wright contended that the economy was in a tailspin and that even if more money were freed now the descent couldn't be halted for another six months.

Eliot Janeway, former adviser to President Lyndon B. Johnson—he broke with him over what he felt was improper financial planning for the Vietnam war—claims the government is locked in a battle with industry for too meager a supply of capital, and that interest rates are riding a relentless upward spiral.

Does Pension Plan Cover Your Widow?

By CARLTON SMITH and RICHARD PUTNAM PRATT

If you're counting on an employee pension to take care of your later-in-life economic needs, better read your agreement carefully to see if there's a gaping hole in your family security arrangements. Recent testimony at Senate committee hearings suggests the odds are good that you'll find one.

The adequacy of the retirement income provided by pension plans isn't in question here. Survivor benefits are. What will the wage earner's pension plan do for his widow, if he doesn't live to collect the pension benefits? All too often the answer seems to be—pitifully little.

SMITH

PRATT

While little attention has been given to this aspect of pension plans, a report developed by the committee said one study "found that without group survivor benefits, vast numbers of survivors (widows) would be virtually destitute." The necessary benefits were provided by very few plans.

The broad subject of "the economics of aging" had received little attention until the Senate Special Committee on Aging, headed by Sen. Harrison A. Williams, Jr., D-N.J., began delving massively into it some months ago. Concerning survivor benefits, says one of the committee's working papers, "detailed data... are sparse," but the few samples taken "clearly suggest that private pension plans are contributing very little to the income maintenance" of the workers' survivors.

For example, in one of the largest, most highly organized and best-paid unions, where fringe benefits are almost unsurpassed, a survey of families in which the wage earner had died showed that about 75 per cent had financial resources, at time of death, of $3,000 or less. Half the families had "little or no assets."

What did widows receive as benefits from pension plans in which the worker may have been accumulating benefits for many years? Only one-third of the pension plans surveyed some years ago by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics provided any death benefits whatsoever. A later private study indicated that around 40 per cent provided death benefits.

When a pension plan does pay a death benefit, "the most common kind" is a monthly payment "only from half a year to five years—and after that, benefits cease entirely," says the committee paper in emphatic italics.

"Another common survivor's benefit," it continues, "is about 2 to 3 per cent" of the deceased worker's salary. He had been averaging $200 a week? The widow gets $4 to $6 a week to supplement Social Security.

Small wonder the committee's working paper reported that, of widows and other aged women living alone, "six out of every ten have incomes below the poverty line."

One conclusion of the paper, prepared under the direction of Dr. James H. Schulz, University of New Hampshire economist, was that "the issue is whether we want a higher standard of living in our younger years, at the expense of a lower standard during retirement."

Brutally, do you want to live it up now, with you and-or widow looking forward to living near or under the poverty line in years to come... or would you like to cut back a little today in favor of putting something in the bank every week?

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rebounded sharply Friday, staging a technical rally that drove the Dow Jones industrial average back above 700 in active trading.

The Dow average of 30 industrial made its biggest single-day advance in two years, closing up 17.43 at 702.22. The previous high single-day spurt occurred April 8, 1968, when the average closed up 18.61 for the day.

On Thursday the Dow average closed down 9.01 at 684.79, its lowest level since April 2, 1963; when it closed at 684.27. However, the Dow had been off close to 20 points at one time in Thursday's trading.

The market's gains late Thursday and Friday indicated to some analysts that it might be forming a bottom.

Short covering was widely cited as one factor in the gain. Several glamor issues made sharp gains, with Polaroid up 5 at 75 1/2; Control Data, ahead 2 1/2 at 41 1/2; IBM up 2 1/4 at 270 1/2; and University Computing up 2 1/2 at 26 1/2.

The Associated Press 60-stock average closed ahead 4.4 to 245.7, with industrials up 8.4, rails ahead 1.8, and utilities up 1.0. The advance was the best for a single day since last March 25 when it climbed 5.5.

Eighty-six blocks of 10,000 shares or more were traded on the New York exchange, compared with 83 Thursday.

The largest block was 258,900 shares of Oklahoma Gas at 19, off 1 1/2. An institutional trade of 109,200 shares of Continental Oil sold at 21, off 1.

Twelve of the 20 most-active stocks on the Big Board advanced and 8 declined. Telex, up 1 1/4 to 16 1/2, on turnover of 295,500 shares, was the most active issue.

Advances outnumbered declines 574 to 263 among the 1,052 issues traded on the American Stock Exchange. Volume totaled 4.41 million shares, compared with 4.06 million shares Thursday. The Amex price change index closed ahead .16 at 21.11.

Wheat Futures Close Lower

CHICAGO (AP) — A government report indicating that the 1970 winter wheat crop probably will exceed last year's production influenced selling of wheat futures that resulted in a loss of more than 2 cents this week on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Other grain futures closed on a generally weak tone. Soybeans new crop options were weak but nearby were strong at the close. Soy oil and meal were irregular when trade ended on Friday, compared with a week earlier.

Taxpayers Question IRS

Q—I didn't think I had a refund coming so I waited until almost April 15 before I worked out my tax return. How long will it take for me to get my refund?

A—If there are no mistakes on your return to delay processing, you should have your refund in June, about six weeks after you filed. It might take a bit longer, however, due to the large volume of returns filed in April.

Q—What should I do about a delayed refund?

A—If you have not heard anything about your refund and it has been 10 weeks since you mailed in your return, then you should call your local IRS office. You should wait 10 weeks before calling as this period of time is generally sufficient for the refund to be issued or a letter sent to the taxpayer explaining why it is delayed. To call before 10 weeks can delay the processing of your return.

When inquiring about a missing or delayed refund, give your name, current address, Social Security number? I need one for a summer job.

A—Your local Social Security office has Form SS-5 you can use to apply for a Social Security number. Send the completed form to the Social Security Administration and they will assign you a number.

Q—What do I do with the Forms I had left over after I sent in my estimated tax declaration?

A—Keep them for your remaining quarterly estimated tax payments. The worksheets will help you determine the amount of your payments and make any adjustments that are necessary. The pre-addressed vouchers and envelopes should be used to make your payments.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, which appeared ready to halt action on a postal pay boost when New York mailmen threatened to strike Thursday night, is now on a timetable that could bring final approval in three weeks.

"Congress is not going to be pressured by a strike," the senior Senate Post Office Committee member, Hiram L. Fong, R-Hawaii, said Thursday before New York letter carriers called off the strike.

Fong said the committee is ready to put out the bill for a Senate vote but a walkout would have forced a delay until a settlement was reached.

Rep. David N. C. Henderson, D-N.C., second-ranking Democrat on the House Post Office Committee, said Congress' reaction to a new mail strike might be even worse:

"I don't see how it could speed it (the bill) up very much," he said. "And it might kill it."

But New York Branch 36 of the National Association of Letter Carriers, one of two New York locals that triggered the nationwide mail strike in March, voted Thursday to stay on the job and put off any further strike consideration until June 12.

The 8 per cent pay raise for postal workers is tied to differing House and Senate bills that would create a U.S. Postal Service to put the mails on a self-paying basis by 1978 and operate much as an independent corporation.

Fong said the Senate postal committee should clear the package next week, adding the chamber's leadership has agreed to give it priority for a Senate vote that could come before the week is over.

The House committee has already passed its version but Rep. William M. Colmer, D-Miss., chairman of the House Rules Committee, said his panel will wait until week after next to meet on clearing it for floor action.

If both the House and Senate pass it in two weeks, it would take at least another week for House-Senate conferees to work out a compromise between the two versions and send it back to the two bodies for final approval.

But Colmer, whose Rules Committee must schedule the bill for House action, said he is opposed to provisions he said could require postal workers to join unions.

House fights also are shaping up over several other provisions, including national versus local labor-management bargaining, but none appeared serious enough to kill the bill.

The measure would disband the Post Office Department, whose mail rates and employee salaries are set by Congress, and replace it with an independent federal agency setting its own mail rates, negotiating pay and benefits with unions and selling bonds to finance modernization.

Justice Heads Will Look Into Augusta Deaths

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department has announced plans to investigate the deaths of six Augusta, Ga., Negroes who were shot during rioting there Monday night.

Meanwhile, doctors who have examined the bodies are unable to agree on how many times the victims were shot.

The Justice Department's Civil Rights Division will conduct the investigation in an attempt to determine whether federal civil rights laws were violated, the department said Thursday.

The disorders were touched off by the beating death of a Negro youth in the Richmond County jail in Augusta. The civil rights division is also investigating that death, the department said.

The Richmond County Commission Thursday ordered immediate autopsies on all six victims after doctors disagreed earlier over the number of times the victims were wounded and whether they were shot in the back.

Wright Urges Congress-Youth Dialogues

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A veteran House member has called on his colleagues to spend one weekend each month on college campuses to listen to what the nation's students are saying.

Rep. James C. Wright, Jr., D-Tex., has written all members of Congress outlining his idea for "Operation Dialogue" and has asked every college in the nation if it would like to participate.

An aide said it's too early to chart the response but Wright's hope is that a deliberately created dialogue would bring "neither fawning adulation nor hostile confrontation" but a mutual education.

Wright, 47, suggested that 60 or 70 members, from both parties and all political shadings, volunteer one weekend each month for assignment to colleges requesting an elected official's presence.

"Congressmen would have to agree to go wherever they are invited, not just where they could get publicity or political mileage," the Texan said.

"They'd have to be willing to listen as well as talk. Students would have to accept a true cross-section of lawmakers, not just those eager to confirm them in their preconceived ideas."

"The purpose would be intelligent, sensible discussion, free of self-righteous preaching, juvenile obscenities or attempts by either to embarrass the other," he said, with the goal being "mutual education, not intimidation."

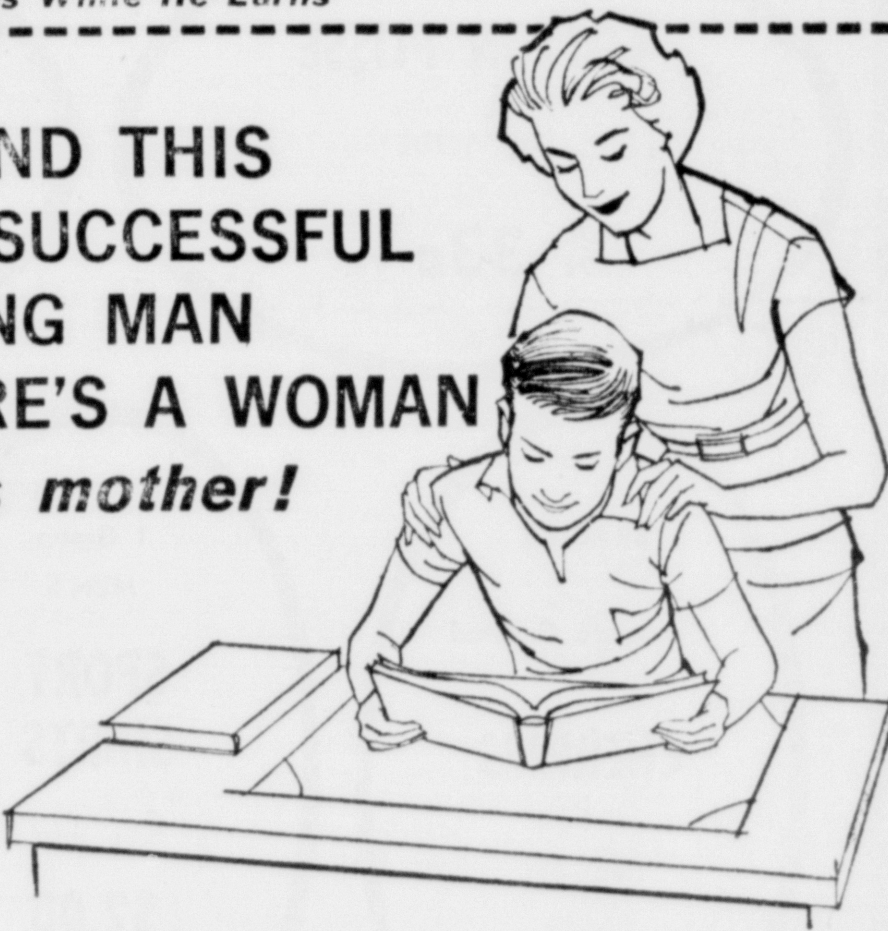

Gamaliel is a Hebrew name and means "God is a reward."

Scratches In Windshield Are Not Easy To Remove

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Mrs. J.K. asked for help in removing a scratch on her car windshield made by the wipers. Burn an ordinary cigar and use the ashes for rubbing away the scratch.—HELEN

DEAR POLLY—Mrs. J. K. wrote about removing a scratch on her windshield made by the wipers. My dad is service adviser for an automobile dealer and he says the scratch could be polished out if it is not too deep but must be done professionally.—MIKE

DEAR HELEN and others—Both these answers are right to a point. The cigar ashes are abrasive and would doubtless remove a MINOR SCRATCH. A professional can tell if deeper scratches can be removed or if the glass should be replaced. One company that installs car windshields says that if a scratch can be felt by your fingernail, it will not be easily removed and one runs the chance of a distortion in the glass. When the scratch cannot be felt with the fingernail, they suggest using toothpaste.—POLLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I hope someone will tell me to get rid of ants all over the house before I go completely crazy. I have a 15-month-old toddler so I must have a SAFE remedy for these pests. Please.—MRS. B.H. CUT GOES HERE

DEAR POLLY—When traveling with our small children, we often have to make stops at rather primitive "comfort" stations. After often wishing we had come better prepared for the lack of what seem necessities, I prepared an emergency kit using my small overnight case as the container. In it I put toilet tissue, toilet seat covers I cut from tissue paper, paper cups, packets of those premoistened towelettes, plastic bags, facial tissues, soap (tail ends and slivers), paper towels, small plastic bottles of water with good tight lids, combs, flashlight, toothbrushes and paste and other needed personal items. This case is put on the front seat and carried into any such place we go. I always refill when I have a chance and always add to it when I get home if I find there was something that would have added to our comfort. We do a lot of camping and we have found my case to be a blessing many times. Mine has a mirror inside the lid. By lifting the lid I can see all the contents at a glance, without pawing through as would be required by a deeper container.—ELSIE

South was tempted to open two no-trump. He had no-trump distribution and maybe his good five-card suit would compensate for only holding 19 high-card points. If South had advanced notrump, he surely would have done this; but he also was hungry for money and he did have a hundred honors in spades. Hence the spade opening and the four-spade rebid after partner's no-trump response.

West opened the king of clubs. South put on dummy's ace and was about to draw trumps, lose a trick to the queen of clubs and score game, rubber and the hundred honors when his dream was rudely interrupted. East trumped that first club.

South stopped awhile as if pole-axed. Then he collected his faculties and dropped his jack of clubs. This play was essential in order for South to make his contract in spite of the bad start.

East returned a trump. South ran off three rounds of trumps and played the ace and a small diamond. His plan of campaign was to work out a way to strip West of all his red cards and depended on West having started with three diamonds and two hearts.

West made the best play he could and led the jack of hearts. South won and now we see why the early play of the jack of clubs was essential. He led his seven of clubs!

West ducked but he was stone cold dead. South overtook with dummy's eight, ruffed a diamond, cashed his last high heart and led the six of clubs. West won but had to lead another club and dummy's ten of clubs won the game trick.

Remarks Wives Get Tired Of

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Husbandly remarks that wives get tired of hearing:

"Yes, I heard every word you said. The trouble is that I've heard them all 10,000 times before."

"Nagging will get you nowhere."

"Well, how can I take you out, when you say you have absolutely nothing to wear?"

"This meal looks awful familiar. Didn't you cook it before?"

"I don't mind ordinary leftovers, but I don't like leftover leftovers."

"If you wanted to live like a rich woman, why didn't you marry a rich man?"

"You pick up after the children—so why do you holler so much about picking up after me?"

"What on God's green earth do women know about politics anyway? They never vote for the man — they vote for or against his face."

"How many times have I told you not to phone me at the office unless it's a real emergency? I don't feel that the fact you've just found your first gray hair is that kind of an emergency."

"What if junior doesn't want to go to college? Maybe he can become a plumber or a television repair man and keep us all in comfort."

"You run the home; I'll run the office."

"Lower your voice, Bert. Here comes my battle ax—and she's got ears like three microphones."

"Go on a second honeymoon? Are you out of your mind? Do you know what our first honeymoon cost? And what did we really get out of it?"

"I wouldn't mind if your mother just visited us now and then, but does she have to try and haunt our house on a permanent basis? Why don't you just invite her for next Halloween?"

"All right, now that I've got a firm grip on my martini, calm down and tell me what happened. Did one of the kids lose a front tooth or the cat have kittens in the shower?"

"If I ran my job the way you do this house, the whole family would be in a breadline by the end of the week."

"Okay, if you have to get it off your chest, get it off your chest. But when you finally run out of breath, let me remind you of one thing: there are laws now about creating noise pollution."

"I'm not knocking marriage but, looking back, all in all I had even more fun in the army."

Al Unser Favored For Pole Position

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — With Al Unser the solid favorite for pole honors, Indianapolis 500 drivers completed warmups Friday for the first round of musical chairs that will set the fastest championship auto racing line-up in history.

Qualifying to determine the 33 fastest cars begins at 11 A.M., EDT, Saturday and, as usual, upwards of 200,000 people probably will be on hand to watch motordom's version of Beat the Clock.

The fastest car on the first day of trials gets the pole position, worth as much as $10,000 and untold rewards from car owner and accessory people.

Unser, just reaching his prime at 31, was the only driver to turn practice laps at better than 170 miles per hour. Most observers believe it will take at least 172 M.P.H. to win the inside pole spot.

Joe Leonard holds the one and four-lap records for the slightly banked 2.5-mile brickyard. The one-lap mark is 171.953 M.P.H. and the four-lap standard is 171.559.

Leonard, himself, figures the top driver must turn four laps at 172.5 to gain the honors. He's back this year in a Vel's-Parnelli Jones Ford that is a team car to the one Unser has used to pin back the ears of the other drivers in practice.

171.233, 170.295 and 170.3, these times having been recorded on the Speedway's timing device. His crew reported they had clocked him above 172.

But while Unser was given the

Olympic Board Votes To Expel South Africa

AMSTERDAM (AP) — The International Olympic Committee expelled the South African National Olympic Committee (SANOC) Friday because of that country's racial discrimination in sport—the first country ever to be expelled by the IOC on these grounds.

The IOC voted 35-28 with three abstentions in favor of withdrawing "recognition" of South Africa.

The South Africans were not allowed to compete in Tokyo in 1964 and in Mexico in 1968 because the IOC ruled them out.

But South Africa remained in the Olympic movement and kept South Africa's links with the Olympics open.

Now South Africa's last links with the Olympics have disappeared.

So campaigns mounted by African nations and the Soviet Union over 11 years have ended with South Africa being thrown out of the biggest amateur sports festival in the world.

The Supreme Council of African Sports (SCAS) charged South Africa in front of the IOC with non-compliance of rule one of the Olympic charter.

The rule states: "No discrimination is allowed against any country or person on grounds of race, religion or political affiliation."

The South Africans as a result of this decision now find themselves under many attacks from international federation to completely isolate them from international sports.

Recently the South Africans were thrown out of the Davis Cup lawn tennis competition, and the international federations of table tennis, weightlifting, boxing, soccer, basketball and fencing have either suspended or expelled the South Africans.

EXTEND ELIGIBILITY
BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—The Big Ten faculty representatives Friday extended eligibility for one year in behalf of 10 so-called hardship athletic cases.

Those granted an extra season of competition because of injury or other hardship factors included Tim Kerestes, a wrestler and Jay Monaghan, football, of Illinois.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Mel Daniels scored 16 of his 18 points in the final quarter in leading a drive that carried the Indiana Pacers to a 109-93 victory over Los Angeles Friday night in the first game of the American Basketball Association championship playoff.

Owners Return Rejected Offer

NEW YORK (AP) — Relations between baseball's players and club owners remained strained Friday when the owners voted to renew the same contract offer that the players had turned down by a 505-89 vote.

"The clubs believe their proposal is entirely fair and generous and represents significant gain for the players," league presidents Charles Feeney and Joe Cronin said in a statement after a joint meeting of the majors.

"I don't know what purpose there can be in renewing an offer already rejected so emphatically," said Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players' Association.

Miller was informed of the owners' action by John Gaherin, who negotiates for the owners.

"We will propose that we talk some more," said Miller. "Their statement was self-serving. They say they think they were fair. The players believe the opposite."

Miller said the date of the next meeting with the owners' player relations committee was indefinite because Curt Flood's anti-trust suit against baseball is due to open in New York Tuesday.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who was not present when the leagues discussed the player situation, appeared before the joint session later.

"I think they all want to play ball," said Kuhn in a news conference. "I don't anticipate any confrontation."

Miller said nothing of any counter action by the players. However, some player representatives had talked of a one-day baseball moratorium on a Saturday when the Game of the Week is telecast nationally.

Kuhn said he discussed the Flood case with the owners and also outlined the general security situation and introduced the new men just added to the security staff.

"We just discussed general practices," said Kuhn. "I would not say there were innovations. It was more a case of intensification."

Cronin meanwhile, confirmed an Associated Press report that the American League would be ready to move back into Seattle "at such time as the major leagues might expand again" with the proper financing and playing facilities, including a domed stadium.

The move was seen as an attempt to head off an $82-million suit by Seattle and the state of Washington, filed March 16. The Seattle franchise was moved to Milwaukee a few days before the season opened.

Gophers Sweep Doubleheader From Illinois

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Pitchers Dave Cosgrove and Gary Petrich led Minnesota to a Big Ten doubleheader sweep over Illinois 5-1 and 8-2 Friday to give the Gophers a 12-2 record in the conference.

Cosgrove scattered five hits in the opener, fanned seven and broke a 1-1 tie in the third with a homer. Jim Chapman's three-run homer in the fifth clinched it.

Petrich posted his eighth victory with a loss in the nightcap on another yield of five hits. The game was called after six innings because of rain.

Three extra base hits in a three-run, fourth-inning uprising put the game beyond Illinois' reach. Bob Schmetz doubled to open the fourth and scored on Scott Franzen's single. Bob Warhol tripled home Franzen and then scored on a double by Bob Nielsen.

Orioles Down Senators, 4-3 In 11th Inning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pinch hitters Merv Rettenmund and Curt Motton combined to produce an 11th inning run Friday night, giving Baltimore's torrid Orioles a 4-3 victory over the sinking Washington Senators.

The victory was the ninth for the Orioles in their last 10 games. The Senators have lost eight in a row.

Rettenmund, batting for Elrod Hendricks, opened the 11th with a double to right field and scored the tie-breaking run when Motton, hitting for winning pitcher Pete Richert, followed with a single to right.

Frank Howard's 12th homer—a two-out blast in the eighth—gave Washington a 3-2 lead, but the Orioles retired it in the ninth. Dave May scoring on what the Senators thought was a game-ending double play.

With the bases loaded and one out, Boog Powell bounced to shortstop Ed Brinkman, whose throw to second forced Frank Robinson. Dave Nelson fired to first and the Senators raced off the field, but Powell was called safe.

Carelton Grabs 1st Round Lead In Midwest Golf

GALESBURG, Ill. (AP) — Carelton took a two stroke lead over defending champion Cornell Friday in the first round of the Midwest College Conference golf championship.

Carelton had a total of 305 strokes after 18 holes of the 36-hole tournament which winds up Saturday while Cornell was second with 307.

Monmouth followed with 309 while host Knox had 310 followed by St. Olaf with 313, Lawrence 315, Ripon 316, Beloit 319, Grinnell 326 and Coe 332.

Tom Koepke of Ripon matched par 71 at the Bunker Links to take the lead among individuals. Ted Boecker of Knox was second with 73. Three others were tied with 74s. They were Larry Hull of Carleton, Bill Travis of Cornell and Bryan McCormack of Knox.

Big Ten Study Of Rose Bowl Inconclusive

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — The Big Ten Friday discussed briefly the controversial no-repeat Rose Bowl policy but took no action in a session which wound up the conference's regular May meeting.

The no-repeat rule which bans the Big Ten team from making two successive trips to the Pasadena classic, was discussed at the request of Athletic Director Tippy Dye of Northwestern University.

A faculty spokesman said the joint group rehearsed the subject for about 15 minutes but "there was not too much pertinent discussion."

The subject became a hot potato late last season when it appeared that nationally top-ranked Ohio State would be barred from a Rose Bowl encounter. However, Michigan took the Big Ten off the spot by upsetting Ohio State in the 1969 season finale and getting the Rose Bowl assignment.

Berry, Hopkins Blast Chicago Past Royals, 9-3

CHICAGO (AP) — Ken Berry slammed two home runs and Gail Hopkins hit another Friday night as the Chicago White Sox rolled to a 9-3 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Joe Horlen went the distance for the victory, his fifth against two losses, and was backed by a 12-hit Chicago assault.

Loser Roger Nelson, making his first start for the Royals since coming off the disabled list, was jolted for six runs in a four-inning start.

Famous Coach Shaughnessy Dies At 78

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Clark Shaughnessy, one of the all-time great coaches of football and often called the father of the T-formation, died Friday. He was 78.

Death was from natural causes, according to a spokesman for the mortuary.

Shaughnessy's fame was spread over more than four decades in both college and professional football, the first with the University of Chicago before it dropped football in 1939.

Shaughnessy's biggest game came when he piloted Stanford University into the Rose Bowl in 1940.

Shaughnessy was on the staff of the Chicago Bears as a technical adviser from 1951 through 1962 and George Halas, owner and longtime coach of the National Football League club said in Chicago:

"He had one of the greatest inventive minds of all time and he lost none of his enthusiasm or devotion even in recent years. Clark was a master strategist and organizer and it was my privilege to have had him as technical advisor on the Bears' staff for 12 years. I shall miss him tremendously."

Shaughnessy joined the staff of the Los Angeles Rams in 1943 as an adviser and that fall, when Bob Snyder resigned, assumed the head coaching job. Shaughnessy guided the Rams to the Western Division title in 1949 but lost in the playoff for the championship in a mud-engulfed Los Angeles Coliseum to the Philadelphia Eagles, 14-0.

Shaughnessy left the Rams in 1950 and was replaced by another old-time Bear star, Joe Stydahar.

In 1940 the Shaughnessy-led Stanford Indians, with Frankie Albert as quarterback, proved a sensation with the revitalized T-attack. Shaughnessy never claimed he invented the T—it had been years before—but he refined and repolished it and in the years that followed the T-formation replaced the single wing as a standard offense.

Winless in the old Pacific Coast Conference in 1939, Stanford won nine games in a row and beat Nebraska in the Rose Bowl, 21-13.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at Pierce Bros. mortuary in Santa Monica.

Shaughnessy is survived by his wife, L. Mae, three children, Clark, Jr., Janice and Mrs. Marcia Wilson, nine grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

YMCA Softball Set To Open

The Jacksonville YMCA Men's Softball Leagues open play this coming week at Nichols Park with three separate divisions scheduled.

The Fast Pitch games begin Monday night with Earl Boucher Inc. set to face Roodhouse Merchants at 7:00, and Ashland meets Illinois Road Contractors at 8:30 in the second game, with a bye for the Knights of Columbus.

Open Soft-Pitch begins Tuesday evening with Byers Brothers facing the VFW at 6:45, DeOrnellas' team versus Capitol Records at 8:00, and Bob's Auto Beauty playing Virginia at 9:15.

The Service Club Soft-Pitch meets Thursday night with Kiwanis playing Jaycees at 6:45, Elks facing Rotary at 8:00 and Ambucs versus Lions at 9:15.

Michigan State's 1970 football team faces rugged assignments the first three Saturdays in October. The Spartans play Notre Dame, Ohio State and Michigan in succession.

Cards Take First From Chicago, 1-0

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Jose Cardenal's broken bat single in the seventh inning scored Joe Hague from third base giving the St. Louis Cardinals a 1-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs Friday night.

The loss, combined with the New York Mets' 4-0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies, reduced the Cubs' lead in the Eastern Division of the National League to one-half game, with the Cardinals one behind.

Hague led off the scoring inning by singling to right off Phil Regan. Mike Shannon then got a single but was forced at second on pinch hitter Vic Davalillo's ground ball as Hague went to third. Cubs' first baseman Willie Smith, playing in, was unable to get back for the bloop hit as Cardenal's bat splintered on the winning hit.

Seaver Tosses One-Hitter, 4-0

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Tom Seaver fired the second one-hitter of his major league career and the second straight by a New York Mets' pitcher as the Mets defeated Philadelphia 4-0 Friday night for the Phillies eighth straight loss.

The only hit off Seaver came with one out in the second inning when rookie catcher Mike Compton lined a single to right field on a 2-2 pitch.

Gary Gentry tossed a one-hitter at the Chicago Cubs Wednesday.

Seaver, 7-1, struck out 15 up-

Nash And Aaron Pace Atlanta Over Reds, 3-1

CINCINNATI (AP) — Jim Nash, with last-out relief help, stopped Cincinnati on three hits and Hank Aaron belted a two-run homer in the eighth inning as the Atlanta Braves downed Cincinnati 3-1 Friday night.

Nash, 5-1, struck out five and walked only one. Johnny Bench, the Reds catcher stroked two of the hits off the big right-hander, a second inning double, scoring Tony Perez, and a two-out ninth inning single. Lee May also rapped a single before Hoyt Wilhelm came out to get the last out.

Aaron crashed his 15th homer of the season, a wind-blown shot to right field, after Sonny Jackson had opened the inning with a single.

Rico Carty, stretching his consecutive game hitting streak to 31 games, registered a bad-hop single in the sixth, scoring Aaron on the tying run. He also had an infield single in the eighth.

IC Fifth In NAIA District

BLOOMINGTON — With a low team score of 298 strokes, Eastern Illinois University edged runner-up and defending champion Western Illinois by one stroke to win the championship of the NAIA District 20 Golf tournament as Illinois College took fifth place in the meet with a 324 point total.

Illinois Wesleyan was third with a 307 total, followed by Millikin with 317, Illinois College, Aurora in sixth place with 338, and Lake Forest seventh with a 348 total.

With the top four out of five scores counting toward the team totals, Greg Neff and Duane Hess shared top honors for the Blueboys as each golfer shot a 40-40—80 over the wet, par 70 course. Walt Riley shot a 42-40—82 along with teammate Dick Justice, who shot a 40-42—82 to round out the IC scoring.

Dale Blankenship of Western Illinois took medalist honors with 38-34—72, two strokes over par.

Cater, Bahnsen Guide Yankees Over Tigers, 4-1

NEW YORK (AP) — Danny Cater lined a tie-breaking single in the sixth inning and Stan Bahnsen settled down after a shaky start to hurl a six-hitter as the New York Yankees turned back the skidding Detroit Tigers 4-1 Friday night.

It was the Tigers' fourth consecutive defeat and 10th in their last 13 starts and dropped them into third place in the American League East, one game behind the Yankees.

A two-run uprising in the sixth sent Detroit ace Mickey Lolich to his fourth setback in eight decisions. One-out singles by Bob Murcer and Roy White put runners on first and second. Cater then singled, scoring Murcer and sending White to third, with Cater taking second when left fielder Willie Horton bobbled the ball.

After an intentional walk, Thurman Munson hit a sacrifice fly. Detroit 100 000 000—1 6 2 New York 100 002 10x—4 8 1

NEW YORK (NEA) — Duck-waddling to the plate in the third inning was rookie pitcher Sandy Vance, 23, of the Los Angeles Dodgers. His first at-bat in Shea Stadium and as he stepped into the box the message board flashed a note: "Welcome—West Side Day Nursery."

It was surely pure coincidence, though about Vance — hopeful pitching successor to Dodger namesakes Dazzy Vance and Sandy Koufax (and stand-in for Bill Singer)—there is a lollipopish quality.

Blue cap is tilted down under the right ear and twirls of blond ringlets tumble over the left. Light-blue eyes are clear and appear ingenious, despite having earned a bachelor's degree in political science from Stanford University.

Two springs ago his Spokane manager, Tom LaSorda, called him over to meet Don Drysdale and said "Big D, this is the guy who's going to take your job. Yep, send you right back to the unemployment agency." Well, Sandy Vance blushed and said much later, "I felt about one-inch tall. But Tom is notorious for that, sure."

Vance was called up to the Dodgers April 24 when it was learned that Singer (known to unpopular punsters as "The Singer Throwing Machine") had developed hepatitis. Vance lost his first game to the Mets, then beat Montreal on a five-hitter and followed that with a win over the Mets.

Polite, slightly built, looking shorter than his 6-2 and thinner than his 180 pounds, the new Dodger right-hander also is tough and determined on the mound as he comes down powerfully with an oddball long stride and with a good fast ball, down-breaking curve and unnerving change-up.

"I caught the second Mets game on radio in the clubhouse in Phoenix," said LaSorda. "I'm shouting, 'C'mon Sandy, get this guy. Believe in yourself, baby.' And one of my players said, 'Skip, I think you got to the guy so much that he hears you, all the way in New York.'"

LaSorda was the manager at Ogden when Vance broke into professional baseball with that team in 1968.

"Sandy's always had a lot of class; he got that from his family, right moral upbringing and all that," said LaSorda. "Only thing he didn't have was the killing instinct. He didn't chop up hitters, know what I mean?"

"With two strikes and one ball he wouldn't — boom — knock down a hitter. I called to him out there, 'Sandy, you're on the hill of thrills. Every professor at Stanford would give up all their wealth, their education, their knowledge to be where you are right now. The mound is your grocery store. Don't let 'em steal your groceries.' And he'd tug his cap and bend his back and go to it. He learned."

In a Tacoma hotel lobby on April 23, LaSorda happened to be talking with Coast League President Bill McKechnie when Vance walked by. LaSorda whispered that the Dodgers had just called up Vance. With his flare for the dramatic, LaSorda asked McKechnie if he'd tell Vance. "It would be a baseball first, a league president telling a player he was going to the big leagues."

"Sandy said, 'No kidding, no kidding, no kidding,'" said LaSorda. "I took him to the airport limousine later, and I said, 'Dazzy—I always call him 'Dazzy' because I told him I wanted to reincarnate one of the great names in baseball, so Dodger fans can hear Dazzy Vance pitching for them again — and now I said, 'Dazzy, I'm turning you loose. You're on your own. You're going to make it big, because I believe in you.' 'I felt like my son was going off to college. We waved to each other as the limousine pulled away. We both had tears in our eyes.'"

Midwest Track Teams Qualify

GALESBURG, Ill. (AP) — St. Olaf, a hot contender, and defending champion Carleton led the field Friday in the qualifying round of the Midwest College Conference track meet.

St. Olaf qualified 10 individuals while Carleton landed nine berths in the meet which will wind up Saturday.

Cornell followed with six while Lawrence and Monmouth had three each. Knox had two qualifiers and Grinnell had one. Coe and Beloit were shutout.

Grinnell had been counted on as a strong contender but yielded only a partial team since the school was shutdown because of student unrest.

LEAGUE BEST: Team and individual winners of the Town and Country Bowling League were saluted at a league banquet Thursday evening. Top, the ACWA team captured the league honors with 1-r, Gerald Black, Don Moore, Bill Smith, Terry Smith and Don Souza. Bottom, Harry DeGroot (l) had the league's top series of 652, and Roland Stout scored the high game, 257, of the season.

Summers Earns Trip To State

MEREDOSIA — Ron Summers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Summers of Meredosia and a senior at Meredosia-Chambersburg High school has earned the right to compete in the 1970 state track and field meet. Ron qualified for the honor by placing second in the Springfield District Meet, Saturday, May 8, in shot put. His throw of 48'11" was the best of the season for the PSMC Conference Champion.

Summers has been the leading point producer for the Indian track squads for the past two seasons, scoring well in the discus, 220-yard dash, and with the 880-yard relay team, as well as the shot put. Since the conference meet, however, he has concentrated all of his efforts toward his goal of qualifying for the state in the shot put.

At the state meet, May 22 and 23, Ron will end an outstanding high school athletic career, which has included: all-state honors in football, the football Most Valuable Player Award, a starting guard position in basketball and second leading scorer, the shot put champion of the PMSC Conference, and winner of the Jack Howell Memorial trophy for scholastic, leadership, citizenship and athletic excellence.

Montreal Tops Pittsburgh 2-1 Behind McGinn
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Montreal left-hander Dan McGinn tossed his second straight complete game, his only two in the majors, stopping Pittsburgh on five hits as the Expos topped the Pirates 2-1 Friday night.

McGinn, 31, lost his shutout in the seventh inning when Willie Stargell drilled a triple to center and Manny Sanguillen drove him home with a sacrifice fly.

Loser Bob Veale, 24, and McGinn both pitched shutout ball until the Expos scored two runs in the sixth.

Two Teams Tie After 1st Round Of Big 10 Golf

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Defending champion Michigan State and rugged Minnesota battled to a first-place tie Friday following 36 holes of the 72-hole Big Ten golf championship.

Each of the contenders had a team total of 773 at the University of Illinois Savoy course which has a par of 36-36-72.

Iowa and Indiana were five strokes off the lead each totalling 778. Host Illinois followed with 780, Purdue had 785, Michigan 879, Ohio State 791, Wisconsin 810 and Northwestern 814.

Greg Harvey of Minnesota with a 76-74—150 and Randy Erskine of Michigan with a 74-76—150 were tied for individual honors.

Bob Mulert of Iowa, Lynn Janson of Michigan State and Wayne McDonald of Indiana all were one shot away with 151.

Niles Bakke of Illinois led the field with a 73 after the first 18 holes but then blew to an 82 in the second round. Erskine needed an eagle two on the 357-yard No. 14 hole on the second round to gain a share of the lead. Erskine hit a drive and then his wedge shot hit the green, took three bounces and fell into the cup.

The championship will be decided Saturday with a final 36 holes.

Three Tie For 2nd Round Lead In Colonial

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Aging Argentine Roberto de Vincenzo bolted out of the pack with a four-under-par 66 Friday and tied Lee Trevino and upstart Bob Smith for the second round lead in the $125,000 Colonial National Invitational Golf Tournament.

The 46-year-old de Vincenzo, victim of the famous scoring error in the 1968 Masters, had the day's best round for a 36-hole total of 136, four under par on the proud old Colonial Country Club course that snapped back at the elite field.

Trevino, who shared the first round lead with South Africa's Gary Player, hung in with a par 70 while Smith, who had never before been even close to sharing the lead in a pro event, took a 69.

Player, along with the legendary Ben Hogan, were among the multitude that found the teeth of the course that had been humbled Thursday by a record 27 subpar scores.

Player finished at 74 for 140. The 57-year-old Hogan, a five-time winner of this event, stumbled on an ailing left knee with a fat 77 for 146.

Miller Barber and Homero Blancas, each with a 68, followed at 137, with rebounding veteran Art Wall alone at 138. Wall had a second consecutive 69 and was alone at 138.

Frank Beard, 72, Bob Charles 70, and Rod Funseth, 66, followed at 139.

Jack Nicklaus, with a 70, was in a large group at 141. Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper are not competing.

Cold and wind were largely responsible for the high scores.

DISCUSS ROSE BOWL POLICY
BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — The Big Ten Friday discussed briefly the controversial no-repeat Rose Bowl policy but took no action in a session which wound up the conference's regular May meeting.

The no-repeat rule bans the Big Ten team from making two successive trips to the Pasadena classic.

McDowell Gains 4-0 Shutout Against Boston

BOSTON (AP) — Cleveland southpaw Sam McDowell, given all the support needed on four straight hits at the start of the game, fashioned his first shutout Friday night as the Indians handed the Boston Red Sox a fifth straight defeat, 3-0.

McDowell, 5-3, stopped the Red Sox, allowing just three hits and fanning eight, raising his American League leading strikeout total to 81.

The Indians wasted no time in starting Boston en route to its ninth defeat in 11 games as Larry Brown led off the game with a single and took third on a single to right by Ted Uglender.

Tony Horton scored Brown with a double off the center field wall. Chuck Hinton then followed with a line single to center, scoring Uglender and Horton.

Boston 000 000 000—0 3 0
McDowell and Fosse; Peters and Moses, W—McDowell, 5-3, L—Peters, 3-3.

Track Notables Set To Appear In King Games

VILLANOVA, Ia. (AP) — A classy field of track and field performers, featuring Kip Keino and Marty Liquori in the 1,500 meters, John Carlos and Carley Greene in the 100 meters, and a two-mile relay with world record potential, highlights the second annual Martin Luther King Games at Villanova Stadium Saturday.

Keino heads a five-man team from Kenya and will compete in the 1,500 meters and two-mile relay. Since arriving here Tuesday, Keino, the 1,500-meter Olympic champion, has tried to play down talk of records. He says he is in only fair condition and thinking in terms of winning not setting world records.

In addition to Keino and Liquori of Villanova, the 1,500-meter race includes Howell Michael of William and Mary, NCAA indoor champion; John Baker of Maryland, John Lawson of the Pacific Coast Club, Frank Murphy of the New York A.C. and Byron Dwyce of United A.A.

Carlos and Greene renew their heated rivalry in the 100-meter dash with Greene of the U.S. Army cautioning against a 10 flat or 9.9, because of the Villanova track. He describes the track as slow. Carlos won the last meeting of the two at the Penn Relays. Others in the field include Jean Louis Rovelomatsa from Madagascar, Tony Greene of Maryland, Mel Penner of the U.S. Army, and Rockie Woods of Texas A. & M.

In addition to Keino there are four other Olympic gold medal winners in the field. Lee Evans in the 400 meters, Willie Davenport the 110-meter hurdles pole vaulter Bob Seagren and long jumper Bob Beamon. The Texas Aggies are in the mile relay against Villanova, Adelphi, Sports International, Maryland and the Philadelphia Pioneers. Villanova coach Jim Elliott predicts a 3:07 time for the event.

Michigan Holds Early Lead In Big Ten Tennis

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Defending champion Michigan took a commanding lead Friday in the Big Ten tennis team race over Michigan State, while Northwestern's Don Lutz and Michigan's Mike Conté gained the No. 1 singles final.

Michigan, going into the final day of play Saturday, had 110 points and qualified a player in each of the singles finals and two teams in the three doubles finals.

Championship matches in singles begin at 1 p.m. on University of Minnesota's courts. Doubles start at 3 p.m. Cold and wet weather forced Friday's matches indoors for a second straight day.

Lutz gained the finals with a 6-4, 7-5 victory over Minnesota's Bill Drake. Conté ousted Indiana's Mark Bishop 6-3, 6-4 in the other semifinal. Bishop was seeded first.

Minnesota's Drake and Dave Cross meet Conté and Jon Hainline of Michigan for the No. 1 doubles title Saturday.

Michigan State is second in team points with 73, Minnesota has 58, Illinois 49, Northwestern 35, Iowa 34, Wisconsin 33 and Purdue 13.

Salvaging Slugger Williams' Task

By MARTY RALBOVSKY
WASHINGTON (NEA) — If there is one characteristic of Ted Williams that appeals to those who view him closely, it is his visual awareness of the people in his dugout, in his clubhouse, in his office. No strange face in his midst can escape for very long the scrutinizing of his green-brown eyes.

Ted Williams

So it is, when Rick Reichardt and his cherubic face appear in the Washington Senators' dugout two hours before game time that Ted Williams' eyes shift automatically from the reporter who is standing in front of him to the opposite end of the dugout, where Rick Reichardt is now sitting alone on the end of the bench, hatless, a purring water fountain for companion.

While Ted Williams' eyes dart bak and forth, as if following an invisible tennis match, one senses that the brain behind them is cataloging impressions of Rick Reichardt while searching, perhaps, for clues to his personality.

In the Ted Williams School of Hitting, a little psychological analysis by the teacher is necessary in determining the approach to the student.

Undeniably, it is no accident that the 6-foot-3, 215-pound frame of Frederick Carl Reichardt is now draped in Washington Senator red and white. He is the latest of Ted Williams' reclamation projects, salvaged from the scrap heap of hitters with more promise than production, their swings rusty from ineffectiveness, barnacles clinging to their bats.

What Ted Williams did to make productive hitters of Mike Epstein, Ed Brinkman and Del Unser, among others, he will attempt to do with Rick Reichardt. The challenge, however, lies not in whether Reichardt ultimately hits 40 home runs and .325, but whether Williams can scrape away the remnants of the past, apply a new coat of glossy wax, and send Reichardt weaving through the rest of the American League with his reconidioned engine humming.

In the Williams School, Lesson No. 1 states that there are no short cuts to .333, and the art of hitting baseballs must be approached with the fervor of hungry men blitzing smorgasbords.

For Reichardt, the change in texts is welcome. He never did accomplish all that was predicted for him by the California Angels, who outlasted and outbid the rest of baseball for his services in 1964. At that time, he was a football and baseball star at the University of Wisconsin and the Angels paid him $175,000 to sign.

His most distinguished year was 1966 when, in the span of one month, he tied major league records for the most home runs in one inning (2) and the most strikeouts in one extra-inning game (6). He did not lead the league in getting hits that year, but he did lead it in getting hit — 13 times by opposing pitchers. He hit around the .250s in the three subsequent seasons and disenchantment set in.

"I guess it was no secret that I wanted to get away from the Angels," said Reichardt, politely and softly. "Things just didn't work out for me too well with them. When they told me I was traded to Washington, I was happy. I've always admired Ted Williams and I'm delighted to be playing for him. I don't know what he has in mind for me yet. I just have to wait and see."

What Williams has in mind for Reichardt, presumably, is a crash course in confidence building as well as in hitting therapy. It has long been the observation of baseball people that Reichardt was pressing needlessly to deliver all those home runs the Angels had expected. He was hardly the game's most relaxed hitter and wound up averaging a mere 13.3 homers in five seasons.

So it is up to Williams now, and his is a course of a different color. His language is blue and the back of his neck and sometimes his cheeks become tinted with red whenever he talks of hitting baseballs. On this day, in his dugout, he was holding court — radiantly — for two newsmen and one new Senator.

"Now...in order to control the damn bat, you gotta choke up a little....Not everybody is a Mantle and strong enough to hold the bleepin' thing at the end...Forget about all that bleepin' pull-hitting, too...It cuts down on the area of the bat you can put on the damn ball....Now, about waiting for good bleepin' pitches...."

Rick Reichardt was still sitting alone on the end of the bench hatless, but he was listening to Williams now and occasionally he nodded to himself, and he finally picked up a bat and stared at it as if making a discovery. School was clearly in session.

GANDY SIGNS WITH NORTH TEXAS

DENTON, Tex., (AP) — Willie Gandy, a highly sought junior college basketball player from Wabash Valley in Mt. Carmel, Ill., signed a letter of intent Friday with North Texas State University.

The 6-foot-3, 185-pound Gandy averaged 23 points and 16 rebounds per game at both guard and forward.

Take-Home Isn't Enough But There Is Time To Think

(Third of a Series)
By TOM TIEDE
PHILADELPHIA (NEA) — What with time-and-a-half for overtime, and things like that, there are a few bus drivers in this city who earn $22,000 a year. There are quite a number of others who earn $12-$15,000.

But Herman Wittrock? He takes home $130 a week. And it's not nearly enough. Wittrock is 45 years old. He has a wife, two children and a mortgage. He has been a bus driver here for two decades. And he has been broke just as long.

Says he, sighing: "You never get anything extra on this pay. Some of the other drivers work overtime, but I'm getting too old for that. Some of the other guys have their wives working, but my wife had a nervous breakdown and she can't work any more. So most of the time I just take home the minimum. You got to stretch it pretty good, and sometimes it won't quite go."

But Herman Wittrock isn't complaining. At least, out loud. He naturally would like more pay—but he is the kind of gentleman who rarely bawls in the open.

For Herman Wittrock is a bus driver. That steady, sturdy, expressionless chap who, sitting on an air-cool cushion, moves the nation's people to and from. You know him. Short, stocky. Recognizable by the back of his neck. The man who, when he takes his cap off, his thinning hair is damp with perspiration. The World War II veteran. The fellow you see twice a day, five days a week, and you never ask his name.

His name is Wittrock, Herman.

And what the hell does he do behind that wheel all day, besides jiggle that coin box lever, pass out transfer slips and stare out the window?

"Well, I think a lot. We got a lot of time to think. I never let it interfere with my work, naturally. It's second nature to me by now to daydream and work at the same time. I don't think in 18 years I've ever failed to pick up a passenger or ever failed to let one off where he wanted."

"I tell you, sometimes I don't think about anything but the potholes and the traffic. Both are terrible in Philadelphia. Our streets are narrow anyway, and when you realize we also have trolley tracks running down most of them, well, the whole thing adds up to hour after hour of miserable driving."

"And I think about my family—I've got a kid in the Army. He's trying to get in the Military Police, down at Fort Gordon. I hope he makes it. I wouldn't want him to be an infantryman or anything. You know, with Vietnam and all that. Hell, that's no place for him to be packing a rifle."

But again, he doesn't think about complaining. Not out loud anyway. Herman Wittrock's no troublemaker. He believes in hard work and mind your own business. If you don't like the job, or the company, or maybe perhaps the nation, then get the hell out.

But don't waste everybody's time squawking.

"I'll say this, this job may have its drawbacks, but it's a lot better than it once was. I'm making three times what I made when I started. And there are some good benefits. This Blue Cross is wonderful, you know. I just had an operation and I don't know what I'da done without the insurance."

"And it used to be a fairly dangerous job, you know. When we carried change around. Guys were always being attacked by thugs. But we did away with all change, and since then there's been no muggings at all. I myself carry only coffee

Don't lose your shirt

You know this summer won't be hail-free. And you can't be sure hail won't hit your farm. It doesn't make sense to put a year's crop income on the line. Not when you can get quality coverage from Illinois' largest crop insurer—Country Mutual. And not when you remember Country Mutual's reputation for quick claims service. Or its long record of dependable protection. Keep your shirt this summer. Give me a call.

LEE MUELLER

Yale's Clean-Cuts Have Gone Poof

By LEE MUELLER
NEW HAVEN, Conn. (NEA)—Fenn-Feinstein Tailors and Furnishings has been located near the corner of York and Elm streets on the Yale University campus since 1922. It is a colorful shop with bright blazers, striped ties and traditional (boola boola) white straw hats gleaming in the front windows.

Inside, a bald man with the mien of an undertaker will tell you they don't sell many straw hats at Fenn-Feinstein these days.

"A few, maybe," he says, his face cracking into a grin, "but not as many as we used to. We don't depend on the college kids for their business any more. We used to—but that was when kids wore coats and ties."

How long, one asks, since Yale students wore coats and ties?

"Too long," said the undertaker, looking around his empty store.

The fact that Yale President Kingman Brewster virtually led the student body in its demonstration of protest against the New Haven trial of 14 Black Panthers probably surprised some alumni who think kids still sing the Whiffenpoof Song in the dear old Temple bar they loved so well. It did not surprise Fenn-Feinstein Tailors.

"The place has changed," the undertaker said. So it has. Everybody knows about the Ivy League look, of course. Bright of eye, white of tooth, good of looks, neat of dress. About the only thing Ivy about Yale now is the stuff that grows on Wrexham Tower.

Hair is big in New Haven this year. Long, flaxen, waxy, curly, loopy and greasy. Hair down to here. Hair down to there. "Hair up to here," says a local parking lot attendant, holding the side of his hand to his throat and scowling.)

Along Broadway near the campus, students parade barefooted and in some instances barechested. There are black students in Afro hair styles and white students in Afro hair styles. All wear jeans. Nearly all (except girls) wear beards, sideburns and mustaches. Some wear sandals. None wear socks.

Kingman Brewster, it is said, communicates with his students. While other colleges and universities have been erupting like a pan of popcorn, Yale has been in the intriguing position of seeing its administration introduce reforms almost before students could demand them. The kids call Brewster "The King," and thus far have treated him like one.

By communicating with his students, however, Kingman has irritated some other people—mostly alumni. Yale's new image does not please many fellows who remember the straw hats, the men who contribute enough money each year to buy several Boeing 747s should the school wish to purchase them.

"I've had several guys just tell me to go to hell," says a Southern man in charge of soliciting Yale alumni contributions.

"A fellow down in Houston was livid. Really. He said his alumni club had worked very hard to get this particular boy into Yale. Brilliant boy. Fine athlete. Clean-cut. Handsome. Paid his own way—went to Yale without any financial assistance. A really ideal kid."

"Then, after one year, the kid comes home looking like a hermit and an unwashed hermit at that. He has turned radical and now he thinks the whole world is corrupt, beginning with Houston."

"I'm telling you. Many parents are going to think twice before they send their sons into that kind of atmosphere."

Yale Alumni Funds managing director Ogden Sutro meanwhile submits that contributions have been "going up constantly" at a rate of 5 per cent each year. Last year's total was $4,500,000, thanks to 37,000 contributors.

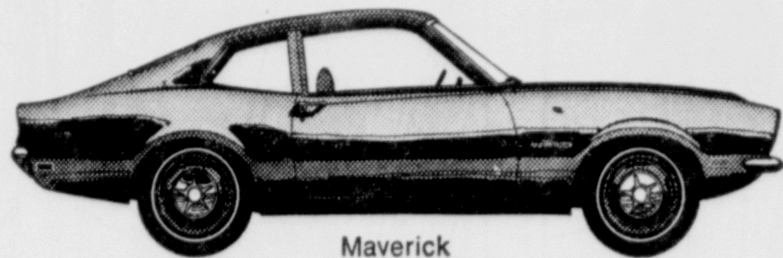

One wonders, of course, whether this spring's extracurricular activities have affected the flow.

"That's quite a question," Sutro said. "We won't know until June 15 when our campaign ends. I can only tell you that through April we're a few percentage points behind last year's figure in dollars and a few percentage points ahead in contributors."

Summer Series 'Kraft' Comic Keeps It Clean

By JOAN CROSBY
NEW YORK (NEA) — He's young, good-looking, quick-witted and says he really only wants to have a good time. He sincerely hopes that the people watching him will also have a good time.
You can find out beginning May 20 when for 14 weeks, Des O'Connor heads the summer series on The Kraft Music Hall. The show is co-located 8-9 p.m. Wednesdays on Channel 20 and other NBC channels.
The series, title of which has not been set yet, will originate from London, where Des is an established comedy star.
"This is such a good opportunity," he laughs, "I don't care if they call it The Freddy Blake Show."
Desmond Bernard O'Connor was born Jan. 12, 1922, within the sound of Bow Bells (making him officially a Cockney). "A nurse dropped a tray in the hospital and I think I was born between a cheese sandwich and a cup of tea," he grins.
After the Blitz started, the family moved to Northampton. He adds, "The bombs were getting so many houses belonging to relatives that we thought the war was Hitler against us. So we took the hint and moved."
He worked for four years as a complaint clerk in a boot and shoe factory, then joined the Royal Air Force.
"I found myself making people laugh," he says, "by what I was saying and I wasn't any good at anything else, so I had to become a comic. Actually, when I was in the R.A.F., I read my name on the bulletin board one day. It said I was entered in a talent competition as a comedian. I think the officers figured if I got roasted I would stop clowning and settle down. But I got the last laugh.
"You know, I really believe that in every office and factory there is someone who could make it as either a singer or a comic if only he had the nerve to break through the barrier and appear in front of an audience."
Des frankly admits he's not the greatest comic ever to appear, but he does say, "I like to laugh and I have a sense of fun. I won't offend anyone and I promise not to do comedy I promise not to do comedy I promise not to do comedy."

about politics, race and sex. Children and prudish aunts can watch me and not be offended. I'm not a goody-goody myself, but there's a place for everything. You never know who might be watching. Why, the President of the United States might not have anything to do for an hour and time in."
O'Connor is married and the father of two girls, Tracy-Jane, seven, and Samantha, five. Sam, as he calls her, is already on her way to becoming a comic.
"We recently moved into a new neighborhood," he says. "My wife hates invasions of privacy and she's really very royal and regal to be married to someone like me from the East End of London. Anyway, Sam, who is a chatterbox, was invited to the house across the street for lunch. My wife had a talk with her before she went. "No matter what questions they ask about your mommy and daddy, you are to say you don't know," my wife told her, adding Sam could talk about her toys, friends and favorite games.
"I was home when Sam got back from lunch. "Did they ask you any questions?" my wife wanted to know. "Yes, said Sam, they asked who my father is." "And what did you say?" "I told them I didn't know."

5th Dimension Singing Group In Special

The 5th Dimension Special: A. Odyssey in the Cosmic Universe of Peter Max," starring the highly popular 5th Dimension singing group in a fanciful visual concept by contemporary artist-designer Peter Max, will be presented as a full-hour musical-variety special in color Thursday, May 21, 7-8 p.m., on the CBS Television Network.

Appearing as guests on "The 5th Dimension Special" will be Glen Campbell, star of his own musical-variety series on the CBS Television Network, comedian Arte Johnson of "Laugh-In" and singer-dancer Joey Heatherton, with Flip Wilson as special guest star. This will be the first television special of their own for the five members of The 5th Dimension — Marilyn McCoo, Billy Davis, Jr., Florence LaRue, Lamonte McLemore and Ron Townson — whose vocal talents have often been displayed in guest performances on a number of television variety specials and series.

AMATEUR TALENT CHAMP ANNOUNCED MAY 17

The winner of the National Amateur Talent Championship, selected through a compilation of votes mailed in by television viewers, will be announced and will appear on "Ted Mack and the Original Amateur Hour" Sunday, May 17, 4:30-5 p.m. Names of the second and third place winners also will be revealed at that time. A group of aspirants to next year's amateur talent title will perform on the broadcast, which will be presented in color.

Mother At Rest, Children On GO!

Picture, if you will, a mother. A woman who has hurried to get through with her housework, who has rushed, without lunch, in order to finish setting out the last of the ruffled petunias along the driveway. A female who believes, by all that is right and fair, that after scrubbing the kitchen and two bathrooms, she should be given a few minutes alone to rest, should be allowed to relax while reading her newspaper, should be able to talk, uninterrupted, for just a few minutes on the telephone. Imagine, if you can, her getting away with it. There's no way.

Obviously, there is an unwritten rule, an unspoken law, which says a woman is never to be disturbed while doing hard, manual labor. Otherwise, how would every child instinctively know not to ask for cookies, etc., while mother is mopping? How would children mysteriously disappear — in droves—when mother is heavily laden with boxes of rubbish in the garage or rearranging hundreds of heavy paint cans in the basement? I cannot explain the scientific principle; I only know what happens.

Once, for example, while an even dozen children played noisily in my back yard, I quietly washed woodwork in the kitchen. At the exact moment I put down the sponge, thinking (not speaking aloud, understand, but merely THINKING) that perhaps I'd stop for a minute and have a cup of tea, the entire dozen children suddenly appeared at my elbows demanding cookies, bandages for scraped knees, dimes for shoelaces, scissors and my new garden catalogue and a ride downtown to the library.

The same afternoon, after clearing what seemed like an acre of debris from the basement floor, I mumbled to myself, "These kids can lend a hand carrying this stuff to the alley." The instant the words were out the entire neighborhood was enveloped in silence. The laughing, screaming children were gone, utterly gone. Where a moment before boys had been fixing a bicycle and hammering on a go-cart, where seven little girls had been playing dolls, all was empty. They did not run away. They dematerialized.

When my work was finished, I blinked my eyes and the children reappeared. They had come back, of course, in order to be on hand with their requests when I took my new magazines out on the porch and sat down to rest.

There was a time when I thought this local phenomenon—something that happened only to me. But I have learned otherwise.

A friend just called me and said, "I have a few minutes, so I thought we could talk," and immediately I heard the background conversations begin in her kitchen. While she tried to talk to me, THEY talked to her. "Want to hear my new riddle? Here's my arithmetic papers. I'm ready to read to you now, mother! Didn't you iron my blue shirt? You're not doing anything, so will you drive me over to Lou's? What's for dinner? Mother, listen to me. Mother, listen! Mother, mothermother..."

The pearl, often a gem of great value, is not a precious stone.

Stamps In The News

Paradise on a postage stamp? Well, not exactly, but Birds of Paradise—famous for their brilliant plumage—are pictured on a new set of postage stamps from Papua-New Guinea.

Birds of Paradise are native to New Guinea and nearby islands. It is the male of the species, however, who is the beautiful one. They are rich in a variety of colors ranging from oranges and yellows to greens and blue noticeable on their velvety feathers. It is the male bird who is noted for dancing and displaying his plumage while courting the female.

The new stamps, report the Empire Stamp Galleries, are as follows: 5 cents—King of Saxony, 10 cents—Little King, 15 cents—Count Ragetti or August Victoria, 25 cents—Sickle-Crested Bird of Paradise.

The four stamps are available at your local stamp dealer or stamp department.

With Paradise on a postage stamp, can Utopia be far behind?

To commemorate the 25th anniversary of the signing of the United Nations Charter, a new set of three stamps will be issued by the U.N. Postal Administration on June 26. The theme of the stamps will be "Peace and Progress." The 6-cent and the 13-cent will depict an olive branch with the UN symbol in the upper left corner. The 25-cent will feature the symbol in the center surrounded by the words "Peace and Progress" in four languages. A souvenir sheet containing all three stamps sells for 44 cents. The dates "1945-1970" appear on each stamp and the souvenir sheet.

There is a stamp market tip from John G. Ross of Stamps

BEREA AID TO MARK 65TH YEAR IN JUNE

The May meeting of the Berea Ladies Aid was held recently at Hamilton's in Jacksonville. Mrs. Ella Foster and Mrs. Ida Nall were hostesses.

The president, Mrs. Helen Steward, opened the meeting with the verse if the month and the fellowship prayer. The devotions were led by Mrs. Elizabeth Flinn.

The secretary, Mrs. Sally Luster, read minutes of the previous meeting and correspondence from Mr. and Mrs. Nall, Mrs. Evaline Lewis and the Illinois Christian Home.

The treasurer's report was read by Mrs. Irene Robinson. A motion was passed to change the meeting date to the second Wednesday of each month.

The nomination committee announced the re-election of the present slate of officers to serve for another year. The birthday song honored Mrs. Faye McQueen, Mrs. Jean Petefish and Mrs. Irene Robinson.

Roll was answered by the number of years each member has been in the aid. The June meeting will be guest day at Rossi's in Virginia. The meeting will mark the 65th anniversary of the aid.

The program was arranged by Miss Lucy DeGroot. She introduced Miss Anna Mann, who gave an interesting program on The American Indian. Miss DeGroot read an article and conducted a contest, won by Lavada Ross.

Sun bonnet contributions honored mothers of aid members. Guests present were Miss Anna Mann and Lavada Ross. Refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Juan de Bermudez gave the Bermuda archipelago his name by first breaching the submerged coral heads surrounding the islands in 1515.

Magazine. Ross advises collectors to acquire stamps which commemorate space achievement. They are in great demand, especially in Europe. Dealers in this country are trying to buy up some of these issues. Ross notes the 3-cent Fort Bliss Centennial of 1948 issued to honor the establishment of Fort Bliss, Texas, and showing a rocket being fired into space.

Many nations, including the U.S., have issued and will continue to produce stamps for man's explorations and endeavors into the space beyond our own planet.

We can only add that school children can learn a lot from collecting and selecting space stamps, particularly from their own country.

Austria has issued a new 2-schilling stamp marking the 150th anniversary of the death of Clement Maria Hofbauer, the second patron saint of Vienna. He was beatified in 1888, canonized in 1909 by Pope Pius X and declared the patron saint of Vienna in 1914.

The new stamp bears a portrait of Hofbauer, the dates of his birth and death (1751-1830) and the present anniversary date of 1970.

THE MAIL BAG ... To John T. Brady, Sr. of Rahway, N.J., the stamp you describe is not the valuable British Guiana but I nevertheless suggest you show it to a reputable stamp dealer in your vicinity. He will be able to examine the stamp closely and give you a first hand appraisal ... to H.D. Hager of Clinton, Iowa, never send U.S. paper money or coins in the mail anywhere for first day covers. In this case I would write directly to the address where you sent your dollar bill and demand the return of your money or the first day cover ... To Dolores R. Redmond of Santa Ana, Calif., the best way for your grandson to start a collection is to go to a stamp department and purchase an inexpensive world album, a packet of used stamps and a packet of stamp hinges. The beginner set should cost about $2. If you cannot purchase the items locally, I will provide the names of one or more places where you can get them.

Discontented Must Work Within Rules, Percy Tells Crowd

By JOHN B. MARTIN

United States Senator Charles H. Percy Friday night declared that "constructive discontent, working within the rules of the establishment, can and will find room in our society to make it work better."

Senator Percy was the featured speaker before a crowd of more than 400 business and professional leaders at the 49th annual meeting of the Jacksonville Area Chamber of Commerce.

Percy said he was not referring to the "distrusting, immature students bent on trying to wreck campuses across the nation." He said he was talking about the "constructively discontent" students who sincerely are seeking a way to "make our government and way of life work better."

The senior senator from Illinois pointed to Earth Day, April 22, in which thousands of students throughout the country worked to call attention to ecology and the "preservation of our environment."

Commenting that many of the young are "resentful" Percy said "these future citizens are upset when they see a government provide a subsidy to keep farmers from growing crops while 200,000 children in Illinois are suffering from malnutrition."

Percy said he was a member of the space committee, but felt a reduction from $6 billion to $3 billion in annual expenditures "still provides us with an adequate program."

"After all," he said, "this good green earth must be made better before we turn to outer space."

In a voice-vote of the dinner guests, most votes were cast according to the national average concerning giving 18-year-olds the right to vote, 57 per cent; no; abolish the electoral college, 74 per cent yes; raise postage on "junk mail", an almost unanimous yes, plus opinions on six other profound issues of the day.

Percy said the government spends $527 million annually to subsidize so-called "junk mail". He said he would introduce legislation to hike the postal rates on third-class mail, so that it would pay its own way.

Toastmaster for the evening was Robert D. Hamm, past president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Retiring President James C. Coultas presented the annual report of the chamber during his tenure as the chief presiding officer. In his report, Coultas described the Chamber as, "the vehicle for coordinating community effort. Think of what needs to be done in our community," he said, "then see that your voice is heard in starting toward these goals. Support the Chamber with your name on the roster."

Newly-elected President Harris Rowe told the crowd in his brief acceptance speech, "If the Chamber is to justify its existence, we must involve ourselves in the community."

Coultas and James Malone received past-president awards. Malone's award was somewhat belated since he was called to Bloomington by his company during his term of office.

Ambassador awards (formerly Contact Club) were received by Robert D. Hamm for individual high producer and the team of Clarendon Smith, Rex Jackson and Dr. Edmund McCarthy.

Coultas presented a resolution from the board of directors accepting the resignation, effective Nov. 1, from Executive Vice President Vernon R. Q. Fernandes, "with regret."

Friday night's dinner was held at McClelland dining hall on the MacMurray College campus.

Percy's arrival was approximately an hour late due to poor flying conditions over the state. He did arrive in ample time to present his address to the group.

Police Handle Three Mishaps

Police investigated three accidents that occurred within a half-hour Friday afternoon. There were no injuries in any of the mishaps.

Karen T. Summers, of 213 West Walnut, was ticketed for driving with an expired license following investigation of an accident in the 400 block of East Morton at 4 p.m.

Her auto struck a car driven by Larry J. Fraser, of rural Roodhouse, as the Fraser car was pulling into a restaurant drive. Police said the Summers vehicle was unable to stop in time to avoid hitting the Fraser car from behind.

Another accident occurred at 4 p.m. at the intersection of West Lafayette and North West street.

A car driven by Michael Long, of Route Two, was westbound on Lafayette when a car driven by Linda Ballenger, of Chapin, pulled from West St. into the Long auto lane. The Ballenger woman told officers her view was blocked by a truck and she was unable to see the approaching car.

She was ticketed for failure to yield the right of way.

A third mishap occurred at the South East and Beecher intersection at 4:21 p.m.

A car driven by Everett C. Ankrom, of 824 North Diamond, was northbound on East when his auto collided with a car driven by Robert J. Laverdiere, an Illinois College student from Waterville, Maine.

Laverdiere pulled from a stop sign into the path of the Ankrom auto. Laverdiere told officers his view was obstructed by a parked car.

Findley 'Frank' Meeting Set Here Saturday

The Findley for Congress Committee will host key campaign officers and workers at wiener roast meetings in Jacksonville and Carrollton on Saturday, May 16, with Republican Precinct Committeemen and their families as honored guests, according to Bill Carl, chairman.

The "Franks with Findley" meetings will be held in Jacksonville at Nichols Park from 11:30 to 2:30 p.m. and in Carrollton at the American Legion Park from 5:30 to 8 p.m.

Included in the Jacksonville meeting are workers and committeemen from Morgan, Cass and Scott counties. The Saturday evening meeting will be attended by workers and committeemen from Greene, Jersey and Calhoun counties.

The Jacksonville meeting chairman is Bill Carl, a Jacksonville businessman. Wilson McIver of Roodhouse is chairman of the Carrollton event, with Joe Smith, Greene County Circuit Clerk, handling arrangements.

Similar events will be held in Quincy and Macomb on Memorial Day and in Springfield on June 5 at the Al Mavis farm.

Former Mayor On Fact-Finding Committee

Former Mayor Byron Holkenbrink was named to the fact-finding committee by the nine city linemen Friday.

"Holkenbrink," Mayor Dan F. Lahey pointed out Friday afternoon, "is not a member of the five-man committee I appointed to study the problem, but was named by the linemen as one of their representatives."

Lehey said he had "no objections" to Holkenbrink being on the committee, scheduled to meet at 9 o'clock this morning in city hall.

Alderman Dale Brown will serve as chairman of the committee designed to thresh out differences between the city and the linemen.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE BEGINS FOR PIKE CHAMBER

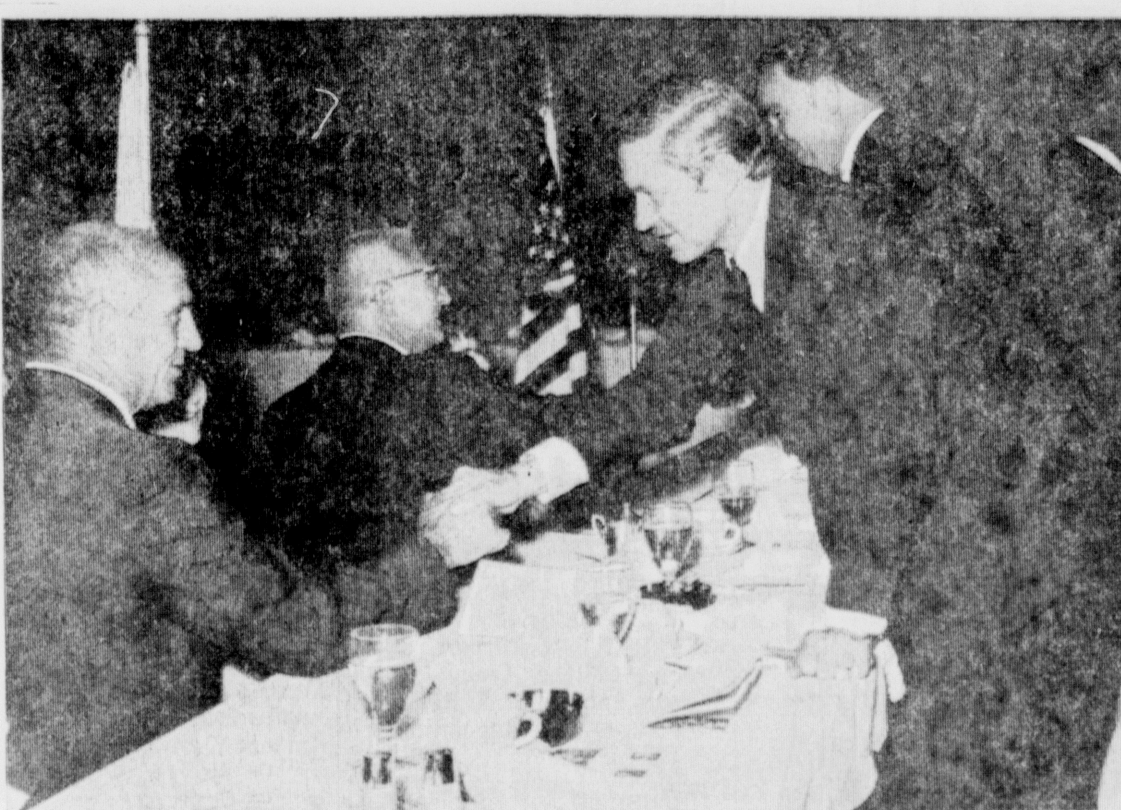

PITTSFIELD—Miss Marjorie Nighbert, secretary of the Pittsfield Chamber of Commerce, announced the Chamber of Commerce has started its 1970 membership drive. A plan is under way for Pittsfield merchants to attend a baseball game in St. Louis Monday, June 29, in a group. Kent Zimmerman is chairman of the drive.

The following activities were accomplished last year by the Pittsfield chamber: Christmas lighting around the square and a number of Christmas shopping promotions; Pig Day, promoting the sale of pork in Pike county; a street sale; sponsorship of a booth at the St. Louis Boat Show; sponsorship of a page of advertising in a tourist newspaper of the Illinois travel organization; and service as a collection agency for the Greater Pike Industrial Corp.

The chamber spent $5,936.54 last year and took in $5,649.50 in membership dues with no special assessments.

James (Jim) Grote, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Grote of Pittsfield, was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, national honor society. Grote, a Pittsfield high school graduate, is a senior at Knox College, Galesburg, majoring in chemistry.

James (Jim) Grote, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Grote of Pittsfield, was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, national honor society. Grote, a Pittsfield high school graduate, is a senior at Knox College, Galesburg, majoring in chemistry.

Lafayette PTA Carnival Set For Saturday

The annual Lafayette Parent Teachers' Association Carnival will be held on the Lafayette elementary school grounds Saturday from 1 to 7 p.m.

The annual fund-raising event sponsors a number of improvements and items for classroom and school use throughout the year over and above the amount budgeted by school authorities.

Featured at the annual event will be a number of rides for children, a cake walk and refreshment stands.

PTA volunteers will man most of the stands throughout the school grounds and handle clean-up following the annual event.

Librarian At Virginia Is Retiring Soon

VIRGINIA — Mrs. Irene Rexroat, retiring librarian of the Virginia Memorial Public Library, was honored at a dinner May 8, at Rossi's restaurant by the library board of trustees. Also present as guests were her husband, Rollo T. Rexroat; Clyde Fair and C. R. Wilson, both former presidents of the board; Mayor Russell Decker, representing the City Council; and Mrs. Helen Blair, incoming librarian.

Following the meal, Mrs. Helen Petefish, president, greeted the guests and presented Mrs. Rexroat with a gift from the board in appreciation of her years of work and her service to the community. In her response, Mrs. Rexroat again noted her pleasure at working with the children, thanked the board for its support and wished Mrs. Blair success in her new work.

Besides the president, board members attending were Mrs. Margery Kilby, Mrs. Bernita Farrar, Mrs. Mary Jo Smith, and Mrs. Francis Dodds.

Unable to attend were vice president Walter Hardwick, treasurer William Yapel, Judge Richard Mills, and Miss Nell Springer.

The next regular meeting of the board will be Monday, May 18, at the library at 8 p.m.
